Afraid They May
Have to be Paid by
Real Estate Taxes

TAKE FREE FUND

Administration Hopes to Greatly Reduce Money Spent on Roads.

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—The Heil administration is determined to institute substantial economies in the operation of the state highway department during the next two years and to reduce the total disbursement for highway purposes, highest administration source has revealed.

Result of such actions will be to make available large amounts of revenues from motor vehicle taxes for general state purposes.

The opinion in informed capital circles is almost unanimous that state highway construction with state funds will be practically discontinued in 1940, because of the demands on state funds for budgetary purposes and the lack of ordinary tax receipts in the treasury.

However, inquirers are assured that "necessary" highway work will be continued, and that projects already begun will be completed.

Administration men make no secret of their plans to appropriate the amount of the "free fund" which is customarily allocated for new construction for general state purposes, and there is a possibility that maintenance funds may be curtailed.

Close Offices
It is considered likely that costs of administration of the highway department will be reduced. Aides of Heil several times have hinted, and the governor in public speeches has observed, that the state department is overstaffed, and that with a curtailed highway construction program in effect for several years, there is no need for the nine branch offices of the commission. (The northeastern Wisconsin division office is at Green Bay in charge of D. F. Culbertson).

Heil advisors are also studying with an eye to possible economies system of rental agreements with counties under which the state pays the counties for road maintenance work which requires the use of county machinery. The state owns no machinery, has always paid the counties for the use of their equipment. In some instances, it has been reported, counties have been able to make a profit on such agreements, although recently the highway commissioners and highway committee asked the state commission for a revision of the contract scales to allow more generous payments. The proposal is now awaiting action by the commission.

County Bonds
Another subject of study in the executive office is the system of bonding agreements under which county highway bond obligations are retired by state funds.

Counties at present have a total obligation in highway bonds of $21,788,187. During recent hearings in the administration's investigation Turn to page 2 col. 7

New Mines of Nazi Type Washed Up on Shores of Belgium

Brussels—(AP)—Mines of a new German type which have magnetic detonation systems apparently requiring contact before exploding, it was officially announced today. The mines were washed up on the Belgian coast yesterday and the detonation was felt as far inland as Bruges, eight miles away.

A spokesman for the defense ministry emphasized the German type mines were not of a kind which could detonate without touching a ship.

Belgian shipping was at a standstill because of mines. The channel mail packet cancelled today's voyage.

Apparently two drifting mines exploded after bumping together off the coast yesterday and the detonation was felt as far inland as Bruges, eight miles away.

Fire Destroys Ship Nearing Completion

Odense, Denmark—(AP)—Fire today destroyed the Holland-America freighter Sloterdyk, nearing completion here, with loss of one man.

The 7,900-ton ship was launched Oct. 5. The 475-foot twin screw vessel was a sister ship of the Sommel-dijk.

BIOFF SURRENDERS

William Bioff, film labor union head, is shown as he surrendered in Los Angeles on a telegraphic warrant from Chicago for his arrest on 17-year-old pandering charge.

Attorneys appeared with a writ seeking his immediate release so he could attend a meeting with film producers on a union demand for a 10 per cent wage increase.

Motion Picture Union Threatens To Close Theaters

Denied Pay Increase;
Bioff Says He Will Call
'General Strike'

Hollywood—(AP)—The motion picture industry braced itself today for the shock of a strike call which A. F. of L. union leaders said would close every film theater in the United States and Canada.

Failing to wrangle a 10 per cent wage increase for 23,000 studio technicians, William Bioff, chairman of the Conference of Studio Unions, announced he would call today a "general strike" throughout the entire motion picture industry.

The hour of the walkout was not announced.

Bioff's declaration followed a conference of A. F. of L. executives and movie producers, in which Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the producers' negotiating committee, informed the unions their demands were being refused because of a "complete readjustment which faces the industry."

Cites Salaries of Stars
Loss of foreign markets and sharp curtailment of production had been cited by the producers as effects of the European war on the industry. The unions pointed to "exorbitant salaries" paid to stars and "ridiculously low" wages to hundreds of technicians and challenged producers to make a readjustment.

Test of the effectiveness of the strike was expected to come when, and if, the unions call upon the movie projectionists to walk out. There are 20,000 film theaters in the United States which would be forced to shut down if the projectionists, members of the inter-national Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, went on strike.

Bioff surrendered voluntarily meanwhile on a telegraphic warrant for his arrest on a 17-year-old Chicago conviction for pandering. He provided $1,000 bail and was granted a writ of habeas corpus returnable Dec. 12.

Of this charge Bioff said, "I paid my full penalty." He added that this whole affair is simply a plot to discredit and embarrass me.

Stolen Car Wrecked as Boys Flee From Police

Janesville—(AP)—The automobile of Mrs. Leona Parman of Madison, stolen last night, was wrecked here today as its two youthful occupants sped through city streets at a 60-mile-an-hour clip in an attempt to elude pursuing policemen.

The police took after the car shortly before 3:45 a. m. because only one headlight was burning. As they approached, the driver accelerated his speed.

After the car was wrecked in a wooded section of the city, the officers seized a 17-year-old boy who said he lives in Minneapolis. The driver escaped on foot. His companion said he carried a pistol.

The Minneapolis boy will be turned over to Madison authorities, the police said.

Former Bootlegger Seeking $196,000 From O'Hare Estate For Alleged Stolen Liquor

Chicago—(AP)—George Remus, a kingpin of bootlegging during the turbulent twenties, has filed a claim for $196,000 in probate court against the estate of Edward J. O'Hare, race track operator who was slain by shotgun fire Nov. 8, it was disclosed today.

Justus Chancellor, Sr., counsel for the plaintiff, said the claim represented a balance Remus alleged was due him from O'Hare for liquor which O'Hare and 21 other persons were convicted of stealing from Remus' bonded warehouse in St. Louis in 1923.

Remus was the chief prosecution witness at the federal court trial, which resulted in O'Hare being sentenced to serve a year in prison and to pay a $500 fine.

Vandenberg in Favor of U. S. Defense Levy

Senator Gives Qualified
Approval to Roosevelt Suggestion

SOUND CREDIT AIM

Senator King of Utah
Against 'Enormous
Expenditures'

Washington—(AP)—Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) gave qualified endorsement today to the idea broached by President Roosevelt of levying special taxes to pay for emergency defense costs.

At his press conference at Warm Springs, Ga., yesterday, Mr. Roosevelt posed for public discussion the question whether such outlays should be placed on a pay-as-you-go basis with special taxes to pay for them or met by further borrowing with no new taxes.

The president did not come out flatly for either plan, saying merely that the special tax idea had been given consideration and that the country ought to give some thought to the issue.

Senator Vandenberg, a member of the senate finance committee, which handles tax legislation, told reporters he agreed emphatically that extraordinary defense expenditures should be "on a pay-as-you-go basis."

Such outlays, he added, should be "paralleled by special taxes to pay for them because of the obvious reason that sound public credit is the greatest national defense necessity of all."

Opposes Huge Expenditures
But Senator King of Utah, ranking Democratic member of the same committee, said he opposed "enormous expenditures for the army and navy" and any plan to "compartmentalize" the budget, lest it lead to larger appropriations.

Vandenberg said he had been giving some thought to the very proposition the president discussed in Georgia.

"The first place," he said, "I think it's a fine thing that the president has discovered some portion Turn to page 17 col. 7

Still Strive for Strike Agreement

Federal and State Representatives Seek Formula for Peace

Detroit—(AP)—Formal negotiations seeking a settlement of the protracted Chrysler labor dispute were in adjournment today, but state and federal conciliators continued their search for a peace formula that would return some 150,000 automotive workers to their jobs.

The negotiations are deadlocked on the issues of union wage demands and stipulation by the corporation that the request of a C.I.O. foremen's union for a bargaining conference will not be renewed.

"We talked a little about wages and a little about the foreman issue," said Arthur E. Raab, chairman of the state labor mediation board after a brief meeting yesterday out of which he reported "no progress."

"We adjourned until 10 a. m. Monday, and we hope that in the meantime we may find a way out of our deadlock."

The 22 men arrested yesterday after the first outbreak of violence since the dispute began on Oct. 6 were released last night but ordered to return Monday for questioning. Eight persons suffered minor injuries in a hail of bricks and stones during fighting that started when workers, mostly Negro foundrymen, sought entrance to the Dodge main plant.

A number of the foundry workers gained admittance and were not molested when they left in the afternoon.

Woman Fined $500 for Liquor Sale to Girl

LaCrosse—(AP)—Mrs. Florence Gardner, tavern operator, was fined $500 and costs by Circuit Judge R. S. Cowie yesterday for sale of liquor to a 14-year-old girl. If the fine is not paid Mrs. Gardner must serve up to eight months in the county jail.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati reversed the O'Hare conviction three years later and ordered a new trial. Meanwhile, Remus had served a year in the Atlanta penitentiary for violation of the prohibition laws.

Upon Remus' release, O'Hare was reported to have arranged a friendly adjudication of his financial obligations to Remus, agreeing to repay Remus for the liquor on easy-going terms acceptable to both. Additionally, reports had it, Remus was given an interest in dog-racing tracks operated by O'Hare and Al Capone in Chicago and Florida.

Chancellor said the original amount of the settlement for the liquor was $208,200, of which $115,500 Turn to page 7 col. 3

KUHN'S 'ANGEL'

Once termed "my golden angel" by Fritz Kuhn, comely Mrs. Florence Camp of Los Angeles is shown as she appeared to testify at trial in New York of the German-American Bund leader on charges of stealing the organization's funds. A rebuttal witness for the state, she repeatedly contradicted Kuhn's testimony.

Judge Will Rule Monday on Counts Against Bund Head

Mrs. Kuhn Says She Sees
'Nothing but Comedy
In Situation'

New York—(AP)—Freed of five of the ten counts against him, Fritz Kuhn stood charged today with stealing $1217 from the German-American Bund, instead of the $5,641 the prosecution contended originally he misappropriated.

Shortly after both sides rested yesterday upon completion of testimony by Mrs. Florence Camp, the "golden angel" of the married bundfuhrer's letters, Judge James G. Wallace dismissed five counts.

His action struck out state charges that the defendant had stolen $4,424 of bund funds.

Criticizing the indictment itself as "highly indefinite" in some particulars, Judge Wallace declared the prosecution had "failed of proof" in the counts he dismissed and added: "No such indictment was ever sustained in this jurisdiction."

Further Ruling Monday
The judge said he would rule Monday on whether to dismiss two other counts of the indictment charging Kuhn with stealing $717 from the bund treasury to pay furniture-moving bills for Mrs. Camp.

Kuhn testified Mrs. Camp repaid the money, and Judge Wallace himself pointed out that the blonde divorcee admitted on the stand she had given back a total of $600 to the bund leader.

If the two counts based on the $717 item should be dismissed, the case then left to the jurors for a verdict would contain one count of second-degree larceny and two of third-degree forgery.

All three counts hinge on a $500 payment for legal services to James Kuhn, Kuhn's attorney.

7 Escape Prison Farm in Georgia

Bind Guards and Slash
One on Hand Before
Their Flight

Albany, Ga.—(AP)—Seven convicts escaped the Dougherty county prison farm today after binding their guards with strips of sheets and slashing another on the hand.

Captain L. E. Herring said the break was made while he was killing hogs in the farm-rd, assisted by Clayton Smith, another guard.

"I asked Smith to go to the cells to get a couple of Negroes to help me," Herring said, "and when he didn't return in a reasonable time, I went to the jail to see what the trouble was."

"As I reached the door leading to the cells, the men jumped on me and held a knife to my throat and I saw a pistol in my ribs. I saw Smith had been bound and gagged. As I was grabbed one of the men cut me twice on the hand, not seriously. The convicts tore up a sheet, bound me and took the key to my car from Smith."

The prisoners fled in Herring's car. Herring said they were Walter Timmons, under life sentence for murder; A. S. Ross, serving a term for burglary, and five Negro felons.

Blocks Disbursement Of Fund for Relief

Madison—(AP)—An order from Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman today blocked immediate disbursement of $147,860 released by the state emergency board to counties for general purposes.

Zimmerman said the funds would be held up pending a supreme court decision on the constitutionality of Governor Heil's partial veto of the old age pension bill.

Britain Ready to Ignore Neutrality Act and Take U. S. Boats Into War Zone

Sweden, Turkey And China Buying American Planes

Listed Among Heavy Purchasers by U. S. State Department

Washington—(AP)—A state department report showed today that China, Turkey and Sweden were heavy purchasers of American-made warplanes during October, a month in which the arms embargo was in effect.

Licenses to export arms and munitions totaled $9,274,478, nearly twice the monthly average since Jan. 1 even though European belligerents were barred from the American market.

Actual shipments of munitions were valued at only $1,259,573, a fraction of this year's monthly average.

China led all other purchasing in October, the monthly report indicated, with orders totalling $3,831,915. The largest item was $2,284,945.

Finland Also Buying
Permits for arms exports to Turkey aggregated $2,209,642, including military planes valued at $1,653,749. Licenses for Sweden aggregated $1,017,557, including $902,250 for planes. Finland was the fourth largest purchaser during the month, taking out licenses totalling $849,900, represented chiefly by aircraft engines.

Officials said they believed China's arms purchases were the heaviest in more than a year.

The report for November, to be issued a month hence, will be the first to reflect the arms orders by European belligerents since the arms embargo was lifted by President Roosevelt on Nov. 4 with signing of the revised neutrality act.

The state department reported that munitions export licenses for the first 10 months totaled $49,748,571. Omitted were licenses issued to Great Britain, France and other belligerents which were cancelled when the arms embargo was imposed early in September.

Actual exports for the 10 months aggregated $70,823,139, including the $1,259,573 for October.

Adopt 5-Month-Old Baby; Try to Prove Humans Need No Diet

Oakdale, N. Y.—(AP)—A five-month-old baby has been adopted by the Royal Fraternity of Master Metaphysicians in an attempt to prove their belief that human beings can live forever.

Central figure in the strange experiment is a red-haired, blue-eyed child named Jean, who James B. Schaefer, leader of the metaphysicians, said would be reared to demonstrate "that man is an immortal being."

Schaefer said the baby's poverty-stricken parents, whose identity he did not disclose, had asked him to adopt her. He said she would be fed a vegetable diet and her training rigidly controlled, with no one permitted to speak to her of death or disease.

The child, he said, is being cared for by a private nurse in the old 10-room Vanderbilt mansion on Long Island obtained by the fraternity in January, 1938, and christened "Peace Haven."

Schaefer and his fellow metaphysicians believe illness and death result from destructive thinking.

Japs Allow Coal to Enter Concession

Tientsin—(AP)—The Japanese army announced today it would permit $50,000 tons of coal to enter the blockaded British concession, starting Monday.

The agreement, resulting from delicate negotiations between British consular and Japanese military officials, came as a northerly gale brought the coldest weather of the year.

Shivering residents of the British and French concessions, who have been besieging coal companies without avail, hailed the news with relief.

Since the Japanese blockade began June 14, only a minimum of coal for essential public services has been permitted to enter the concessions, even though quantities were available nearby.

Americans who live in both concessions, have tried to bring in baskets of fuel in jinnikishas and automobiles since cold weather made the shortage acute.

England Asks Fishermen To Help Clear Away Mines

SEEKS VOLUNTEERS

Neutrals are Worried
Over Decision to Seize Exports

London—(AP)—Great Britain, striving to protect her shipping against German offensive sea warfare, appealed today to her fishermen to aid in the hazardous task of sweeping English coastal waters clear of mines.

While a fleet of trawlers and minesweepers combed the sea lanes for explosives which the British said Nazi warplanes planted, the royal navy issued an urgent call to deep-sea fishermen between the ages of 18 and 45 to volunteer their services.

The call was issued as the government prepared to deal with expressions of concern from non-belligerent countries over its decision to seize German exports—even when carried by neutral ships—as a retaliatory measure.

The Netherlands already has protested, a Belgian protest has been prepared and a Danish delegation was in London to discuss war trade problems, including the export blockade.

In Tokyo, the Japanese foreign office today threatened counter measures against the British program, which it said violated assurances which had been given to Japan by the British government.

German Warning
(In Rome, Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano yesterday called attention of the British charge d'affaires and the French ambassador to possible consequences which the extended blockade might have on Italian commerce.

(The German press, exploiting recent sinkings of merchant vessels, warned that no free shipping lanes to Europe now existed and sought to convince neutrals of the advisability of halting commerce with Britain.

Asks Extension of Visitor's Permit

Frenchwoman Does Not Want to Go Home to War District

Washington—(AP)—A French visitor from no man's land asked Uncle Sam today not to send her back home soon.

She is Mrs. Marthe Mourer of Strasbourg, a French village lying between the Siegfried and Maginot lines.

It was peaceful enough in Strasbourg when Mrs. Mourer came to this country March 15 to visit her aunt, Mrs. A. Lachapelle of Hawthorne, N. J., and to see the world's fair.

She had a six-months visitor's permit and has had it extended once for three months. When she applied for that brief extension there wasn't any doubt about her going home soon to her native village.

Along came the war and now the boom of big guns echoes in Strasbourg and shells, as far as Mrs. Mourer knows, may be whistling dangerously close, although she was said to understand that the village itself has not been bombed.

Through the office of Representative Seger (R-N. J.) she began negotiations for an extension of her visitor's visa, which expires Dec. 15. Seger's office said Mrs. Mourer is 39 and a housewife. It was explained that her husband had left Strasbourg but her application for the extension did not show where he had gone.

Aids of Seger said that presumably if Mrs. Mourer had to go home, however, it would be to Strasbourg, but they expressed confidence the extension would be granted.

'Rebel' Policemen in War on Vice in West Virginia City When Superiors Fail to Act

Huntington, W. Va.—(AP)—Specular raids by eight "rebel" policemen operating without orders and on their own time today clamped the lid on vice in West Virginia's largest city.

State police, sheriff's deputies and liquor commission agents for nearly a month have tried to clean up the city without help of police but not until the self-appointed vice squad revolted against "lack of leadership" did gambling halls, unlicensed saloons and handbook establishments bar their doors.

State enforcement authorities stepped in when the city law and order crew of 90 failed to act on protests from the ministerial association and other civic bodies

BACK IN HARNESS

Premier George Tatarascu (above) has been asked by King Carol to form a new Rumanian government. The cabinet headed by Premier Constantine Argetoianu when trade negotiations with Germany—in which the Nazis sought to obtain more oil and foodstuffs at reduced costs—broke down. Tatarascu has previously served as premier.

A question now troubling some officials is what position this country would take if a belligerent warship stopped an American vessel and ordered it into a port within a combat area.

The captain of the American ship would be forbidden by domestic law to enter such an area, and, theoretically, could be punished if he did.

Would Absolve Captain
This government would not attempt to punish the shipmaster in such a case; but it conceivably would take up the matter with the belligerent involved.

British embassy authorities declared the sole purpose of the contraband patrol was to keep goods from reaching Germany. They declared there was no thought of seizing neutral shipments for Britain's own gain.

But they added that if an American vessel were taken to a British port under the rules of international law they could not consider the fact that the vessel was violating the domestic neutrality statute of the United States.

Facilitate Passage
Even if it were necessary to send the vessel through a mine field, they declared, the British would be justified in ordering it into port if it were suspected of carrying contraband.

Lord Lothian, the British ambassador, told reporters yesterday that Britain's system, designed to expedite American shipping to European neutrals, would not guarantee free passage of goods but would "definitely facilitate such passage."

Under the system, effective Dec. 1, a shipper may obtain from a British consulate a navicert, or shipping certificate, showing that his consignments are not objectionable to Great Britain. In most cases, such a shipment would not be subject to seizure by British contraband patrols.

Another Aerial Threat
London—(AP)—A German bomber appeared over the Shetland islands today for the ninth time in four weeks. Air-raid warnings also sounded near the important Clyde-side shipbuilding center in southwest Scotland.

Anti-aircraft guns in the Shetland fired on the bomber.

Find Woman, Thought
Poor, Had $287,300
Hoard Hidden Away
Chicago—(AP)—Mrs. Janet Lincoln lived frugally before her death last week.

The 56-year-old widow paid relatives $5 a week for room and board, pleading inability to pay more. Yesterday she was revealed as the owner of a $287,300 hoard.

A safety-deposit box gave up $279,000 in bills of $1,000 and $500 denominations. There was $5,000 in a bank checking account, and $3,300 in a savings account.

Investigators were attempting to learn whether Mrs. Lincoln left a will. Her husband, Willis L. Lincoln, a real estate broker, died in August, 1938. His interests included an amusement park in Rockford.

James R. Glass, the widow's lawyer, said apparently no one knew of her hidden wealth. In 1937, he said, the Lincolns allowed a mortgage on their 16-apartment building to default rather than pay $16,000. "They said they did not have any such money," Glass said.

Embassy Says Sole Aim
Is to Keep Goods
From Germany

Washington—(AP)—Authoritative spokesmen said today that Great Britain believed the rules of war superseded the rules of neutrality laid down in this country's neutrality act.

British embassy officials declared it was impossible for any country, by domestic legislation, to immunize its shipping from seizure.

The neutrality law forbids American ships to enter designated combat areas in Europe. American authorities have expressed the opinion this should entitle American shipping to special consideration from belligerent contraband patrols.

Secretary Hull Fights to Keep Trade Program

Faces Strong Opposition In Coming Session Of Congress

Washington—(AP)—Sad-eyed, gentle-mannered Cordell Hull is undertaking, at the age of 68, one of the major efforts of his career. The secretary of state took personal command yesterday of the defense of his trade treaty program against a chorus of criticism that has been rising with the approach of June 12, 1940, the expiration date of the law authorizing his department to negotiate reciprocal tariff-reducing agreements.

And, among the newsmen who jotted down his words, he left no doubt that he would exert all his influence to obtain a new lease on life for that statute at the next session of congress.

Hull faces formidable opposition. Many Republicans and some Democrats contend that the treaties now in effect have opened American markets to goods competing with home-made merchandise. A leader of the National Grange is among the critics. Soft-coal producers and John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers joined recently in saying that they would strive to modify, if not terminate, the trade treaty law. Some Democratic senators would like to see the issue passed over until after the presidential election, arguing that it might set off a party-splitting fight.

Another complication has been added by the war in Europe. Well-informed persons disclosed yesterday that the United Kingdom's wartime report recommending that it halt its purchases of nearly a score of American products covered by the British-American trade treaty. These persons estimated that the kingdom's purchases of the affected goods—which include fresh apples and pears, motor cars, some toilet preparations and sports apparatus and except special circumstances, musical instruments, cash registers and laundering machines—amounted to $21,220,000 in 1938.

Secretary Hull's reply to critics yesterday was that the trade treaty policy would be the foundation of any lasting peace achieved after the war in Europe was over. It reflected the feeling that the treaty, which has been in effect since 1923, is a high watermark of peace and that the economic and political troubles.

Declaring the treaties were designed to increase domestic employment, he told reporters they should contrast the existing situation with the Hawley-Smoot tariff act, which, he added, had thrown 10 to 12 million persons out of work.

Janesville Circuit Court Jury Returns First Degree Verdict

Janesville—(AP)—Arnold W. Putnam, 23, of Milwaukee, and Roy Herde, 19, of Jefferson, were convicted last night of first degree murder in the holdup shooting of Vernon Rinehimer at Afion last May 20. The jury deliberated 51 hours and recommended leniency for Herde. Putnam was charged with the actual shooting.

The circuit court jury, which deliberated 51 hours, reported at 8:30 p. m. a recommended leniency for Herde. Putnam was charged with the actual shooting.

Sentence was deferred by Judge Jesse Earle to give defense attorneys an opportunity to make motions for a new trial.

Rinehimer, a 49-year-old carpenter employed by a Janesville company, was shot when he attempted to intercept two holdup men who had robbed the general store operated by his brother Charles at Afion. The holdup netted $3.

Asked for a third degree verdict, the jury had its choice of three degrees of murder, or acquittal. Defense attorneys asked a third degree verdict, which concerns killing without "any design to affect death by a person engaged in commission of any felony."

Putnam testified that after he and Herde ran out of the Afion store that "I fired some shots but I was only trying to scare them." Rinehimer was at the head of a group rushing across the street from a tavern after a small girl notified them of the holdup.

Herde, who denied firing any shots, admitted on the stand his part in the holdup and driving a car stolen from Victor Weiczorek of Cudahy. The defendants had been honorably discharged from a CCC camp at Minocqua a short time before the holdup.

It was the first Rock county first degree murder trial in 16 years.

Old Post Office Is Suitable for Police Station, Official Says

Charles Wheeler, Green Bay, state building inspector, was in Appleton Friday to inspect the old post office building on Oneida street to determine if the building would be suitable for a police station.

Wheeler said the building could be made fire proof at a low cost, where the cell blocks would be located. The structure is in good condition except for several roof leaks, he said.

The federal government has offered the building to Appleton for $8,000 and the city is considering buying the building for a police station. The matter is in the hands of the building and grounds committee.

Italian Tenor Adds to Operatic Laurels

Chicago—(AP)—Giovanni Martinelli's brilliant operatic career carried a new luster today after his debut in German opera.

After 39 years in grand opera, the famous Italian tenor made his first appearance in a German operatic role last night, singing Tristan in Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde."

Martinelli, who hitherto had taken 55 roles in French and Italian operas, sang opposite Kirsten Flagstad in a performance widely acclaimed by a Chicago Civic Opera company audience.

The circuit court jury, which deliberated 51 hours, reported at 8:30 p. m. a recommended leniency for Herde. Putnam was charged with the actual shooting.

Sentence was deferred by Judge Jesse Earle to give defense attorneys an opportunity to make motions for a new trial.

Rinehimer, a 49-year-old carpenter employed by a Janesville company, was shot when he attempted to intercept two holdup men who had robbed the general store operated by his brother Charles at Afion. The holdup netted $3.

Asked for a third degree verdict, the jury had its choice of three degrees of murder, or acquittal. Defense attorneys asked a third degree verdict, which concerns killing without "any design to affect death by a person engaged in commission of any felony."

Putnam testified that after he and Herde ran out of the Afion store that "I fired some shots but I was only trying to scare them." Rinehimer was at the head of a group rushing across the street from a tavern after a small girl notified them of the holdup.

Herde, who denied firing any shots, admitted on the stand his part in the holdup and driving a car stolen from Victor Weiczorek of Cudahy. The defendants had been honorably discharged from a CCC camp at Minocqua a short time before the holdup.

It was the first Rock county first degree murder trial in 16 years.

European Conflict Falsely Credited With Boom in U. S.

Washington—(AP)—The national income of the American people will top the 68-billion-dollar mark this year. That's about four billions ahead of the net income for 1938.

The unemployment at the end of the year will number about 8,000,000 — or less than they've been since the stock market crash of 1929.

That income is far short of the 90-billion-dollar economic millennium desired by President Roosevelt. And the unemployed are still four times as numerous as they were in 1929.

But there has been a sharp upturn—better than most economists dared to expect before the European war came along.

Just "Bad Memory"

Why the sharp improvement? Did the war do it?

You'd be a lot closer to the truth if you charged it up to a bad memory. That's the conclusion of a large group of government economists.

The European war could not be the direct cause of our economic improvement, because our trade with Europe has shown little increase since the war began. European countries were doing a lot more business with us last year than this time.

Our 1939 prosperity — or what passes for it—can be attributed to our own fall buying spree that began with the war, and is not ended yet.

Nearly everybody had a vague notion that the war produced inflation and high prices. You call that war psychology. Everybody thought he'd buy at low prices, and sell dear later on. Prices did go up for a short while, but there was no actual shortage of anything. Yet people are buying in advance. Apparently they are counting on something to shove our economy into high gear within a year or so.

Progressives of Fox Valley Plan Active Program

Senator LaFollette Confers With Group at Neenah Meeting

Plans for the next campaign were discussed at a meeting of Fox valley Progressives with Senator Robert M. LaFollette last night at Neenah.

Outagamie and Winnebago county Progressives will soon start arrangements for a general meeting. The general meeting will be preceded by a session to be called in the near future by Urban Van Susteren. Plans will be made for a series of meetings at which state leaders will speak.

An exchange of speakers by county organizations also is planned to secure a more closely knit organization. Van Susteren claimed there would be candidates for every office in Outagamie county at the next election, and candidates will be urged to come out in an open primary instead of having an uncontested election.

Senator LaFollette told the Progressives last night to attack the Republican strategy of placing the blame for their failure on Governor Heil. The legislature is equally to blame, he stated.

"The people who gained by the Heil administration want him again, but they dare not advocate his reelection," LaFollette told the Progressives. "During the next administration, Wisconsin will face the worst financial disaster that it has ever experienced. State workers of the Republican party are already hoping that Mr. Heil will make a statement indicating that he does not care to run for reelection."

Others who spoke at the Neenah meetings were Walter Melchior, Appleton; Mayhew Mott, Neenah; and Harold Priebe, Oshkosh.

In the western border region, the enemy made isolated reconnaissance flights while German scouting planes penetrated as far as the middle of France.

A German U-boat in its operation region destroyed an English U-boat trap, an auxiliary, 7,000-ton warship. The U-boat trap was camouflaged as a Dutch steamer.

"According to English reports, the British 8,860-ton steamer Mangalore sank off the English south-east coast."

(British reports said the Mangalore, listed in Lloyd's Register as an 8,886-ton vessel, struck a mine. Her crew of 77 was saved.)

Developed Q-Boat

One of the mysterious weapons of the World War was the Q-boat, first developed by the British.

The first Q-boat made her appearance about a year after the war started as the "600-ton Farnborough," which had the outward appearance of just another tramp steamer.

But, according to accounts which became available after the war, behind the high sides of the vessel a different picture presented itself. The sides were equipped to fall away, revealing heavy guns. Loaded with lumber and specially constructed, the Farnborough and later Q-boats were designed to stay afloat for hours under severe shelling or even a torpedo attack.

The Q-boats were built upon the theory the enemy submarine would come to the surface to shell the freighter and send her to the bottom to save torpedoes or come up to watch her sink after torpedoing her.

The Q-boats operated with success because a sunken submarine

Registration by Affidavit on Day Of Elections Out

When it comes time for the spring election in 1940, electors in Appleton will have to register their intentions to vote at the city clerk's office before election day or they won't be given a chance to vote at all.

The state legislature at its recent session amended the election law and, in effect, ruled that registration by affidavit on election day is a thing of the past.

The law previously allowed citizens the right to register for voting on election day provided they could induce two freeholders to sign the registration application. Under the new law, this will be discontinued and only changes of address will be accepted on election day.

The deadline for registration usually is 10 days before electors go to the polls. Affidavit registrations will be accepted during the 10-day period, according to the law.

An effort to convince all and sundry of his pure democratic views was bespoken in heraldic whispers. A few of those from the inner robing room of the New Deal were invited to the Cosmos club for a private showing of the McNutt brand of democracy.

Wisconsin Police Leading Way With Training Schools

F.B.I. Lends Aid to Courses of Type Held In Appleton

Wisconsin police authorities are showing the way to the other states in the union with their police training schools, one of which has been in progress in Appleton for the last two weeks, according to T. F. Baughman, ballistics expert of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, who has been here several days conducting classes and giving demonstrations.

"These schools, organized by your police chiefs, are encouraged by the federal bureau which is glad to provide the teaching personnel," Mr. Baughman said. "Other states are planning similar schools, but Wisconsin was the first actually to get started."

Schools have been held in a number of Wisconsin cities, including Green Bay, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Madison, Wausau, Superior and Eau Claire, attracting from sixty to eighty men at each, Mr. Baughman said. Policemen are instructed in the use of firearms, how to make arrests, how to conduct their relations with the public and in the technical aspects of their work.

Provides Laboratory

Mr. Baughman said that the federal bureau's interest in the work of local police departments is well illustrated by the laboratory facilities it makes available to police. At least 90 per cent of the work in some of the laboratory's departments is for police departments and has no connection with cases in which the F. B. I. is interested.

The bureau has experts in all fields of crime detection, ready to apply their expert knowledge to local police problems, Mr. Baughman said. Bureau experts frequently are asked to testify in trials as to their findings, and their services always are made available.

"Police schools, such as the one in Appleton, are a great service to the communities because they encourage the use of scientific methods in crime detection and police work," Mr. Baughman said. Police officers have shown an intelligent interest in the lessons, he stated.

Christmas Seal Sale Will Start In County Nov. 30

Christmas seal sale managers for towns and villages in Outagamie county were announced today by Carrie E. Morgan, president of the Appleton division of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association.

The sale of penny Christmas seals to finance the fight against tuberculosis will be sponsored by the Kaukauna Woman's club at Kaukauna. Mrs. Jesse Hamilton is president and the seal sale manager is Mrs. Victor Haen.

In other county towns and villages the following will be in charge of the sale: Shiocott, Mrs. Leo King; Hortonville, Mrs. Alta Hough; Black Creek, Mrs. C. E. Roach; Kimberly, Mrs. W. W. Webb; Seymour, Mrs. C. A. Van Vuren; Little Chute, Mrs. Carl Hassmann.

John Trautmann is seal sale manager in Appleton and is being assisted by officers of the Appleton division, Miss Morgan, Mrs. L. S. Wolfe, secretary, and Al Stoebauer, treasurer.

Letters carrying the seals will be in the mails Nov. 30, the day scheduled for the start of the campaign this year. The drive to raise funds will continue to Christmas.

The enclosed seals cost $1 and the association wants to sell them all. If too many seals are sent they may be returned to the association committee.

Last year nearly 900 lives were lost in Wisconsin by tuberculosis and seals are sold in an effort to prevent this wastage of life, the association says in its letter. Money from the sale is used to finance tuberculosis testing and other preventive measures.

The system of state-county highway bond agreements, it has been charged, is a subtle evasion of the state constitutional prohibition of state borrowing.

Under the system the counties vote the bonds, but with an understanding with the highway commission that they will receive sufficient fund allocations from the state to meet the installments when they fall due. Interest payments, however, are direct obligations on the county and the real estate tax payer.

Refusal to Allow Browder to Speak Has Repercussions

Indictment Used as Basis For Denial of Civil Rights, Lawrence Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—The controversy at Yale, Harvard and Princeton over the question of whether Earl Browder, head of the Communist party in America, shall be allowed to speak at student meetings has brought some interesting repercussions here.

While the authorities at Yale have agreed to let Mr. Browder speak, those at Harvard and Princeton have declined, and the ground given is that the Communist chief has been indicted for alleged violation of the laws governing the use of passports.

An indictment is a mere accusation of guilt and has never before been regarded here as a basis for denial of civil rights to anybody. Upon conviction, of course, a different set of consequences ensues, but, if indictment for an alleged criminal offense is to be used by the universities as a reason for denying freedom of speech, then other Americans whose views are often sought by the colleges may be affected.

Thus, the department of justice nowadays secures indictments against business men on criminal charges in connection with alleged violation of the anti-trust laws. Would any of the universities bar such men from speaking or delivering lectures just because they are under indictment? To do so is to lend weight to a rapidly growing but unfounded impression that indictment is the equivalent of established guilt.

Policy Proclaimed
The use of criminal indictments for alleged economic offenses has been rare heretofore, but, under the present administration, the policy is openly proclaimed as a necessary part of law enforcement. Did the colleges take this into consideration when they barred Earl Browder?

Another angle to the case is the assumption that university students are unable to think for themselves, and, when exposed to a speech by a Communist leader, will succumb to his propaganda. Soap-box orators have declaimed for generations on the street corners of New York on every possible "ism," and there are certain folks who contend this should be stopped altogether. The argument usually made in opposition is that such speakers get far more attention when attempts are made to suppress them than when they are permitted to blow off steam on the street corners.

For the universities to put themselves on record as afraid to listen to an address on freedom of speech, or to address from freedom of speech, but it is, of course, not on that ground Mr. Browder was excluded from the academic halls. When his indictment by a grand jury is announced as the official reason, the colleges which bar him are open to criticism because they have used an indirect device to do that which they probably would not care to do directly.

College students have a curious way of going contrary to the authorities. Now that Earl Browder has been barred by some colleges, he will doubtless be invited by many others. Some of the student organizations will consider it a prank and others will quite seriously attempt to see whether freedom of speech is something to be permitted only for the thought we like instead of for the thought we hate. As the late Oliver Wendell Holmes, justice of the supreme court and a great liberal, once defined freedom of speech.

Dies Committee
Since the war emergency began, the tirade against communism and fascism has reached a new high throughout the country. The Dies committee of the house of representatives has been uncovering subversive activities on the part of Communists and there seems no doubt some of them actually represent foreign governments. But the job of prosecuting them for their activities is up to the department of justice, which, for one reason or another, has not followed up what the Dies committee has revealed. Indeed, Representative Dies is complaining publicly that the administration is not giving him the help of government agencies in ferreting out these subversive activities. Most congressional investigations have had the active aid of administrative officials and their staffs, but, because Mr. Dies has stepped on the toes of many of the left wingers hereabouts, the cooperation he needs has been denied him. This only means that, at the coming session of congress, the administration will find itself the object of an anti-communist drive and possibly large sums will be voted to the Dies committee to continue its inquiries.

If the college authorities want to stamp out communism, they can develop forums for the discussion of subversive activities as well as communistic doctrine, and perhaps the students will be happier when they hear all sides of the controversy than when they are, in effect, denied an opportunity to make a first-hand examination and judgment of what the communists have to say.

'Shorty' Newcomb, Bus Driver, Finds His Job Involves More Than Just Keeping On Schedule

BY DON ANDERSON

There's a lot more to driving a bus than shifting the gears, opening the doors, and stopping at the right corners at the right time.

A bus driver moves in an intensely human world. His customers are all manner and kind of people: the old man going to Menasha to visit his son, a Kaukauna woman weary of shopping, a boy coming home from school, excited girls off for a dance at the Cinders.

The driver meets them at odd hours. On cold winter mornings, when it was agony to leave a warm bed. In the late afternoon, after a tough shift on the paper mill. At high noon on a roasting summer day.

Waves of people—stumbling, stepping nimbly, laughing, sulking—enter and leave his machine each day. With them come the situations, the problems that attend all humanity. Overleapt this morning and had to hurry like hell to make the bus. . . . Wonder if that woman thinks this is a moving van, what with all those packages. . . . Did you ever see such an awful hat in your life. . . . I sure told him off in short order. . . . Driver, does this bus go to Kimberly?

John Newcomb, 324 S. Locust street, has watched the tides of humanity move in and out of street cars and buses for a good many years. He's "Shorty" to most of his passengers. He was a street car conductor and bus driver from 1924 to 1928. After street cars were abandoned, he devoted all his time to driving buses for the Wisconsin Michigan Power company.

Enjoys It
He enjoys it. You can tell that by talking with him about his occupation; and by watching him greet his passengers as they step in.

There are difficulties, like icy highways and thick sleet and the occasional passenger who gets nasty about something or other. But the difficulties unwind themselves. Shorty says, and when you're nice to people they are nice back.

A bus driver is in a position to do favors for people, rather handy favors. For example, there was the woman living on a small farm between Kimberly and Appleton who was almost never at the highway when the bus arrived in the morning. She worked in Appleton.

"Many's the time I've stooped outside her place and blown the horn," Shorty raves away or dies. Shorty says it takes him weeks readjusting himself to the change. Seems like he should still stop at that particular corner and wait, as he had stopped for years.

When a person is not at his usual corner in the morning or evening, Shorty doesn't just look straight ahead and roar by. After all, burnt toast, a bad pass with a razor, a stubborn furnace—any of a number of little things—might have delayed the morning progress in the household. And Shorty thinks it's worth a glance down the street to see if the man or woman is bounding toward the bus line. There are quite a few early morning sprinters in these parts, Shorty says.

A few years ago there was a little girl who went to St. Joseph's grade school who got on Shorty's bus at the corner of College avenue and Morrison street. Occasionally she would forget her lunch bucket and leave it standing by a store on the corner. Shorty would spot it on the return trip and return it to her mother, whose home was on the route.

One day a Kimberly woman got on the bus with her little boy and rode to Appleton to shop. When the bus stopped on College avenue, the woman, knowing Shorty had a 10-minute layover, asked him if he would keep the boy in the bus while she ran up the street and made her purchase. Shorty said sure. Ten minutes went by. Fifteen. Finally Shorty said, "Well, boy, do you want to ride to Kimberly with me?" "Sure," the youngster said.

Shorty took him to Kimberly. On the return trip, the mother, not a bit worried, was waiting at the corner. Liked the idea.

Shorty grins when he recalls that it was with great reluctance that the boy finally left the bus at Kimberly. He wanted more of that.

Dogs don't bother drivers much, Shorty says. The only time they are objectionable is when they are horse-like in their proportions. A driver won't protest a small animal that can be held in the lap. But there are very few canine passengers.

Shorty can still get amused over one story involving a dog. It was in his days as a street car conductor.

VETERAN BUS DRIVER IN ACTION

A boy got on the street car at Menasha. Shorty thought he looked nervous. He was clutching the front of his coat. When the conductor came to collect fare, he noticed about three inches of puppy tail sticking out from the youngster's coat.

"What have you got there?" Shorty asked. "Oh, nothing, nothing at all," the youth said, scared stiff. Shorty broke down, had a good laugh, and told the frightened boy he could bring his puppy out into the daylight, that he had no intentions of putting him out of the bus.

Another street car saga Shorty likes to relate goes like this: One day, when he was on the Neenah run, a woman and her son came into the car. In those days, children 11 years old or younger paid only half fare.

Shorty eyed the big, gangling kid. "Madam," he said, addressing the mother, "isn't your son over 11 years old?" "No, he isn't," the woman answered severely.

"Why ma, what are you talking about," the boy piped up. "I'm 13 years old."

"I had to turn away and laugh a little," Shorty recalls.

Trying the patience. What might be called a test of patience is the story Shorty tells of an elderly Kimberly woman who got on his bus on College avenue one day.

The driver knew she lived in Kimberly and it so happened he was piloting the Kaukauna bus. When he pointed out her mistake, she said acidly, "I know where I'm going."

When they reached Little Chute, the woman asked, "Aren't you going to Kimberly?"

He pointed out to her again that the bus was headed for Kaukauna. "Well, why didn't you tell me in the first place," she observed.

Shorty gave her a transfer from Little Chute to Kimberly. When he came back to Little Chute, she was still there. He took her back to Appleton and entrusted her to the care of another Kimberly woman who saw to it that she ultimately reached home.

He says on the way back to Appleton she cracked, "Do you know where you're going. You didn't believe."

Passengers, as a general rule, are pretty sensible, the driver says. "In all my years of driving I've never come across anyone who was so unruly he couldn't be handled."

The genial bus driver agrees that men don't relinquish their seats in a bus to women as often as they did in the street cars "years ago." Shorty doesn't see any reason why a man of advanced age who has been working at a hard task all day long should give his place to young women. With older women, especially those who are a bit shaky, it's different, of course. And they receive consistently thoughtful treatment from passengers, Shorty has observed.

Before Shorty took to driving buses, he was an ardent horse fancier. Years ago he was an active driver in harness races held at fairs in the valley. He once owned a right swift nag known as "Paddy Leyburn."

He has an album with a number of pictures taken in the days he owned the horse. Shorty, the bus driver, likes to look at those pictures and remember the exciting speed that "Paddy Leyburn" could turn out.

St. Mary CYO to Stage 3-Act Play At Church Sunday

'Small Town Romeo' Will Be Presented in Afternoon and Evening

Kaukauna—The senior CYO of St. Mary's church will present its 3-act play, "Small Town Romeo," at the church auditorium Sunday. A matinee will be held at 2 o'clock, with another performance at 8 o'clock. A special feature on the program will be songs by the glee club of the junior CYO, with a high school orchestra also to play. The setting is laid in the town of Rushville hotel, where a young playwright, a part taken by Norbert Becker, comes for a rest. Jeanette O'Donnell has the role of the hotel's owner, attempting to solve a mystery connected with her inn.

Lillian Oliva plays a society woman, another guest at the hotel, apparently there for her health. Alois Goewman has the part of L. B. Lloyd, a dignified business man, rather hard of hearing, Roman Berg, acts as the village miser, with Josephine Tennessen the village school teacher, with modern ideas, however. Grace Nagan is the banker's daughter.

In Role of Spinster
Much of the play's humor is furnished by Betty Verfurth, in the role of Sarah Higgins, spinster aunt of the hotel's owner, Luke Martin, as the eccentric auto mechanic, and Leo Weigman, the village constable, who fancies himself a sleuth.

The play is under the direction of the Rev. Michael Drexler, assistant pastor of St. Mary's parish. Ruth Welhouse and Esther Hennes are property managers, with James Weigman in charge of the ticket sale.

Others on the production staff are Dorothy Timmer, Mildred Hubeny, Corinne Segelink, Helen Robedeau, Angela Van Dyke, Helen Sanders, Vange Nettekoven, Marion Egan, Geraldine Plutchak, Lorraine Powers, Mary Verbeten, Valoise Kalupa, Marie Schway, Ben Truymann, Leonard Derrus, Sylvester Hanby, Henry Hubert, Robert Verbeten, Robert Voet, John Kauer, Robert Landreman, Kenneth Leithner, Francis McMahon, Dolores Landreman and Ann Landreman.

Yule Lights Going Up On Kaukauna Streets

Kaukauna—Street lighting for the Christmas season, to be turned on for the first time Thanksgiving evening, is rapidly taking form in Kaukauna business sections. Strings of lights, with large stars in the center, and triangles at intersections, will give the city a holiday air. The work is sponsored by Kaukauna Advancement association.

Schedule of Sewing Classes Is Outlined

Kaukauna—The schedule of sewing classes at Kaukauna Vocational school, taught by Mrs. Augusta Goetzner, has been announced. New members may register by attending a class. The sessions will be held Monday, Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 2 to 5 o'clock, and Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings from 7 to 10 o'clock. Classes will not meet next Thursday.

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Mertes barbershop on Wisconsin avenue. William Dowling is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6:30 in the evening if their papers were not delivered.

RIO TO SHOW CAPRA PICTURE

Frank Capra, Hollywood director who turns out but one picture a year and was responsible for "Lost Horizon," "It Happened One Night," and "You Can't Take It With You," brings his newest picture, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," to the Rio theater starting next Thursday. James Stewart and Jean Arthur head the imposing cast that includes Claude Rains, Edward Arnold, Guy Kibbee, Thomas Mitchell, and Benia Bondi. On the same program with "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," are Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy, co-starring in their latest feature length laugh riot, "The Flying Deuces."

Kaukauna Deer Hunters Join Trek to Northern Woodlands

Kaukauna—With almost 200 deer tags bought from the city clerk, Kaukauna hunters left yesterday and today for the north woods, where the season closes Dec. 1. Last season Kaukauna marksmen brought about 25 prizes back to town.

On their eighth consecutive expedition north is a party composed of John Coppes, R. H. McCarty, L. C. Wolf, Peter Renn, William Flynn, Barney Lamers, Dr. G. J. Flanagan, Ben Ives, Sam Rasmussen, Ed Reuter and James E. McFadden. This group will hunt in Taylor county. T. E. Elworth and Cleon Elworth will join them later for a day or two.

Other Parties
Another party that left yesterday included C. Fassbender, Ed Eiting, Francis Brooks and Earl Mollet. Frank Charlesworth and James Leg-

reid picked Oconto county to try their luck. Owen Kitto, Leon Regenfuss and Joseph Regenfuss will hunt near Boulder lake. Spending the season in Florence county will be Robert Pahl, Herman and Carl Schwin, William Harwood, Al Neising, Ben Nyles and Dr. John Hogan, along with Martin Van Rooy of Appleton.

Other Kaukauna men who intend to spend at least a day in the deer country are Al and August Pollack, Lee Chandler, Jerome Kilgas, Ray and Gordon Hennes, Nick Milbach, Arthur Main, Anton Rieth, Joseph Promer, Irvin and Ivan Schatzka, VV. ### High School Band Presents Concert

Offers First Program of Season at Seymour Gymnasium

Seymour—The Seymour High school band, under direction of Principal E. T. Hawkins presented its first concert of the season at the high school gymnasium Thursday evening. The Girls' Glee club and the girls' sextet sang several numbers. The band played "Colonel Miner," "The Cavalier," "Silent Trombone," "On the Avenue," "Cabinets," "Washington and Lee Swing," "Waltz," "Robin Hood" and "Down the Street."

After the program a short business meeting of the Music Activity club was held during which Mr. Hawkins gave a talk on the band and eligibility requirements.

Special Thanksgiving services will be held at the Lutheran church beginning at 10 o'clock Sunday morning. There will be no services on Thursday, Nov. 30.

The Friendship Ladies met at the home of Mrs. Elche Krause Thursday afternoon with 21 members and 5 visitors present. Bingo and Chinese checkers were played. Prizes in the first game were won by Mrs. Warren Dopkins, high and Mrs. Elsie Dopkins, low; in the second, first was won by Mrs. Delbert Bishop and second by Mrs. Elmer Spaulding. Special prizes were awarded to Mrs. Spaulding and Mrs. Tony Frieman. Lunch was served by Mrs. Krause, Mrs. Ira Jeffries and Mrs. Milton Nagel.

Seeks Aid in Study Of Work Stabilization

Emerson P. Schmidt, of the University of Minnesota, has asked the cooperation of Appleton employers in his investigation of employment stabilization and technic. Employers who have done anything in an attempt to eliminate employment fluctuation and provide continuity of income have been asked to contact the Appleton Chamber of Commerce. Schmidt will be in Appleton next week and would like to interview employers. He is working on the problem with Jay C. Hornel, of the Hornel Packing company.

Clapper Has Little Hope for Drop in Government Spending

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

Washington—Take with a large grain of salt these Washington hints that there is to be a sharp cut in the budget. True, things are changing in Washington. But not that much.

Perhaps the deficit will be cut. Some say as much as $2,000,000,000. But that's something different. If the deficit is cut, it will be because revenues are due to go up with improved business. Expenses won't go down—not so you can notice it very much. Mr. Roosevelt is trying to squeeze some of the water out of the expensive New Deal setups. At the White House they tell us the trend is to be downward. But all of the savings thus made will be more than wiped out by the big jump that is to come in army and navy expenses. We are going in for more national defense. That costs money. This year the army and navy are costing a total upward of $1,500,000,000. Next year this will be upward of $2,500,000,000—perhaps $3,000,000,000. You can count almost certainly on national defense costing $1,000,000,000 more than this year.

Where can $1,000,000,000 be cut out of ordinary civilian expenses? Out of relief? This year we are spending about $1,400,000,000 on relief. If it is cut down to a round $1,000,000,000 it will be a miracle. You don't turn people out to starve in election years. You don't cut off your farm benefits in election years. And who is going to cut veteran payments? Those are the big chunks and they won't dissolve. Economies, except for $300,000,000 or $400,000,000 in relief, must come from small reductions in administrative expenses. It will take a lot of cheese-paring of government.

When Mr. Roosevelt set up his three new administrators under the reorganization plan—the administrator in charge of social security, lending and public works—he hoped for a combined saving from them of about $200,000,000—a fraction of 1 per cent. Paul McNutt, federal security administrator, who is trying to make a record of administrative efficiency for his presidential campaign, is going to squeeze $20,000,000 out of his operating costs. That's as much as all three administrators were expected to cut, and Mr. McNutt is doing it in face of having to add personnel to handle old-age insurance payments which begin in January. Yet the cut amounts to only 2 1/2 per cent of the $800,000,000 budget of his consolidated agency.

Government Bureaus Almost Indestructible

Undoubtedly Mr. Roosevelt wants to tighten down. But a government bureau is almost indestructible. It is tougher to cut through than armor plate. As the president himself has said so many times, no large reductions can be made in government expense without cutting out functions. You can't fire enough clerks and typists to make a dent in expenses which total $9,000,000,000 a year. It can be done only by pushing a whole class of voters away from the public trough and that, as I understand it, is seldom done by politicians of any party.

In the fiscal year which ended last June, the government's revenues were about $5,500,000,000. Expenses were about $9,000,000,000. The deficit was about $3,500,000,000. Expenses for next year, beginning July 1, 1940, will depend upon the appropriations to be made by congress in its next session starting in January. They are not likely to be less than $9,000,000,000 and may be closer to $10,000,000,000, depending upon how strong congress goes on national defense. Revenues are bound to go up. Taxes probably won't be revised as to rates. But business improvement should send the total revenue up to $7,000,000,000. That would indicate a deficit probably of $2,000,000,000 or more.

One cannot safely attempt exact figures, and much guesswork is involved. It is safer to leave it in the stage of a broad generalization. That generalization is that government expenses won't go down materially; revenues will go up some; red ink will still be needed for at least a couple of years to close the books. The administration will frown upon spending as a pump-priming policy—and will continue to spend. Only it will be charged to national defense.

Handschke Paces Lutheran League; Two Teams in Tie

Krueger Five Trips Leads Twice to Share First Place

New London — On the cellar Marzink Five, Orville Handschke pounced a 586 series with lines of 197, 169 and 220 to lead the Lutheran Men's club league at Prah's alleys last night. He missed setting both record marks by only four pins. His team beat Boese's Five two games, the losers paced by Al Handschke with 188 and 489.

Krueger's Five tied for the lead again by beating the topmost Lippold Five two games. Arnold Schmidt's 200 game topped the losers while Harold Krueger's 493 count was high for Stingers. Meshke got ahead of Saville for second place by tripping them two games. Ralph Ristie of the losers paced the matches with 192 and 492.

Plywood League
The Dodgers took a 26-7 lead when Krull's Bees gave up three slow games. Ed Reds held on for second place with two victories over the Cubs. Best efforts for the evening were Ery Buelow's 514 and 200 counts for the Reds and Louis Meshnick's 507 and 200 for the Dodgers.

Borden-Farmer League
The Borden loop remained knotted up after Thursday night's matches when Lebanon was taken by Maple Creek for two games and Ostrander was overtaken two by Black Creek, leaving the losers tied first with 13-2. Bear Creek led Bear Creek in two victories over Royaltown with a 497 total and 189 game. His marks were surpassed only by Elwood Hutchison of Lebanon with 521 and 206.

Mayor, Justice To Address Club

Business, Government Will be Topic for Women's Group

New London — Mayor E. W. Wendlandt and Justice Fred J. Rogers will be the guest speakers at the monthly dinner program of the New London Business and Professional Women's club at the Elwood hotel at 6:30 Monday evening.

"Business and Government Grown Up in Our Town" is the topic for discussion. The mayor will discuss the growth of government in the city and Justice Rogers, an historian by avocation, will outline the development of business in the community.

In charge of the program are Miss Grace Fleischauer and Mrs. H. E. Ehrenreich.

New London Women's Study Club to Hear Impressions of Fairs

New London — America's 1939 fairs will be discussed in detail by the New London Women's Study club at the home of Mrs. M. C. Trayer Monday afternoon. Impressions of visitors to the fairs will be given by Miss Magdalen Knapstein who saw the New York World's fair, and Miss Ellen Lucas, who will describe her trip to the San Francisco Golden Gate Exposition. Both speakers are teachers at Lincoln school. The talks were arranged by Mrs. George Polzin.

Educational aspects of the New York fair will be discussed by Mrs. C. D. Fethers. The book, "New York, Fair or No Fair," by Willis, will be reviewed by Mrs. J. W. Monsted. Mrs. F. A. Jennings will review the book, "My California," by Norris.

A social hour will follow the discussions with Mrs. Carrie Hooper, Mrs. Ben Hartquist and Mrs. R. R. Holliday assisting Mrs. Trayer as hostesses.

Noted Herd Sires Are Purchased by Farmers at Chilton

Chilton — Ted Christoph, Chilton farmer, purchased a Holstein herd sire, Oostie Premier Paymaster at Waukesha, recently. The sire of Oostie Premier breeding, is the son of Premier Oostie whole eleven nearest tested daughters have averaged 23,310 lbs. of milk with 831 lbs. of butterfat. His dam has produced 4,722 lbs. of butterfat in eight lactations. The sire is in line with Sir Inka May breeding, the greatest living sires of Holstein breeding at the present time. A club calf, Ormsby Matador Korndyke, raised by Christoph, was also sold recently to a Pennsylvania buyer by A. C. Oosterhuis, Oconomowoc. Theodore Federwitz and Sons recently purchased an outstanding Guernsey herd sire, Monarch's Herd's Challenger, from one of the leading Waukesha county Guernsey herds. The sire is a closely linebred bull with Monarch's Bluebell Boy with an index of 590.2 lbs. of butterfat, the high index sire in Wisconsin in 1938 on the maternal side of both the dam and sire pedigree. The dam of the herd sire is not only a high producer, but is also a full sister to the high index sire of the state for 1939.

U. W. Regents May Take Active Part In Securing Funds

Board Members May Approach Legislature Rather Than President

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — The University of Wisconsin board of regents, considering the effects of a new cut in the university's funds ordered by the Heil administration, is studying a plan to help President C. A. Dykstra persuade the legislature to grant it adequate financial support.

A. J. Glover of Fort Atkinson, chairman of the new board, commented here yesterday that board members will be willing to assist the university president in his biennial task of appearing before the legislature to plead for appropriations. He thought that the board would be favorable to the idea of halting the practice of sending the school's administrator alone to ask for funds.

Glover said the idea is "budding" and that the finance committee will probably be the one designated by the board to assist the president in his most formidable lobbying job. The finance committee is headed by F. J. Sensenbrenner, prominent Neenah paper manufacturing executive.

"Under a plan of this sort," Glover said, "the president of the university would be assisted by the committee. The committee or its chairman would present the university's budget requests and the ## president would be present to provide details.

The plan would be a significant change in policy for the board. Glover recently observed that "when it comes to the budget and the legislature, our presidents have been calling on the capitol with little tin cups and green glasses and asking for money for a long time."

"Now I don't mind the presidents getting a few bumps — not this one, anyway — but that should be the regents' job. They should be able to make an intelligent presentation before the legislature themselves."

According to President Dykstra, he would "be glad to have some help."

Dykstra's persuasion of the legislature during the 1939 session was not as successful as the university wished. In its regular budget, the university was cut a million dollars below its previous funds. Although the legislature later provided that the emergency board could grant it small extra allotments, the same emergency board last week decreed another five per cent cut in its appropriations.

Trial of Mike Kuhn To be Delayed Again

Because Judge Henry A. Lockney, Waukesha, will be unable to reside, the trial of Mike Kuhn, Nichols tavernkeeper charged with second degree murder in the death of Frank Pleckham, town of Black Creek, will be continued from Dec. 5 to a later date.

Pleckham died after a beating he received in Kuhn's tavern Aug. 24 and Kuhn was accused of administering the beating. Judge Lockney was named to replace Judge Edgar V. Warner after Kuhn filed an affidavit of prejudice in circuit court.

GOLD CROPS OUT AGAIN

In an abandoned gold mine in Georgia that during its day produced considerable of the yellow metal, they have come across a lode which analyzes a fortune to a ten. Just to lead a wagon with the dirt from this mine, as a farmer spades a load of black loam for a new garden patch, and there is $60,000 in the till.

Again one thinks of the Forty-Niners, of that immense trek across the continent that was marked with human bones. Perhaps there was never such a panic among mankind as during those years when every whisper carried the news of the golden streams in California in which one merely dipped the pan to become rich.

But there is something much more interesting than wealth to this story of gold. It is the story of gold itself, of what it is composed, of how it is strewn throughout the world in rare places and in stingy quantities, and how from the very earliest day of mankind's existence it has been found in his cave, in his tent, in his home and in his bank, and men have battled for it just as nations battled for it recently. For there was something more to the taking of Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland than the pride of a great people trying to erase a recent humiliation. There was the fight for gold. Berlin needed the gold to be found in Vienna, Prague and Warsaw, and its appetite for this metal helped spur it on.

Among all the strange mysteries for which man has spent centuries trying to locate the key, there is nothing stranger than the story of gold. How came it to be first discovered? How came it to be first used? How came man to discover that in its very rarity lay a large share of its value? Yet if the pages of history are turned back until they are brittle and charred with age, there will be found written upon every day of man's life the word gold.

Yet man did not always use gold as a means of bartering. When Columbus landed at Watling Island, he found the natives, about as simple and as ignorant as any people on the earth, the owners of golden ornaments. Gold to them was a thing of beauty, and, as such, was used to adorn the person. They, like many others, were soon to find that the Spaniard classified gold under a wholly different heading. And his classification meant their blood, and eventually, their destruction.

And yet when we try to follow this yellow metal further we find a description about like this:

"A metallic element; atomic number, 79; atomic weight, 197.2; melting point, 1,063 degrees centigrade; boiling point, 2,600; density, 19.33 grains per cubic centimeter; yellow, very ductile, the most malleable of the metals, and, as a conductor of electricity, inferior only to copper and silver."

Much of this may be meaningless, but in a practical way we all know that gold, even aside from its value as a monetary standard, is a very useful metal because it is not corroded by moisture nor affected by oxygen or ordinary acids.

And America now has cornered far more than half the gold in the world. Strange, is it not, that thousands of miners crawl along like moles under the ground to find this metal and are then compelled to turn it over to our government which takes it and sinks it in another hole in the ground down in Kentucky? Yet its very existence is a matter of stability to those pieces of paper men refer to as money and makes possible a multitude, aye, millions, of daily transactions by which the bloodstream of commerce is kept healthily pumping through the arteries of the country.

Perhaps gold is a strange element. But there is something stranger, the strangeness of mankind that makes gold as strange as it is.

And down in Georgia, they are digging violently, faithfully, with bright eyes and high hopes. Perhaps they will run across another Comstock lode. Perhaps a new Cripple Creek is in sight. For one of the odd things about gold is that it is about as exclusive as high hat society. It often sticks around in the same neighborhood, one vein not far distant from another. And this knowledge makes men all the more feverish in its pursuit as their hopes climb the thermometer.

Certainly America, blessed in its fertility and thrice blessed in its isolation, has been suitably blessed in the number of gold mines already discovered across its vast areas.

A PIECE OF PRAGUE AT MADISON

The students at the University of Wisconsin put on one of the wildest home coming warm ups in their history on the eve of the Purdue game.

Surely as every mob has several devils loose in it, someone must have whispered in hundreds of ears, "Let's raise hell tonight."

Police reserves found that collegiate pranksters had discovered some new ones since they last went on a rampage. Opening up fire hydrants and running away with manhole covers took on some of the elements of pretty rough stuff, but building barricades so as to prevent the police from approaching is a new curve and worthy of particular comment.

Judging by the descriptions of the riots at Madison and those at Prague recently, we would have to vote the Madison one the prize. But nine ringleaders were not shot, although tear gas had to be employed to make them disperse.

A diagnostician of public affairs would have no trouble writing a prescription for these collegiate outbursts. The football team at Madison had lost three straight games to Big Ten opponents. That meant the boys and girls had been three times denied the ecstatic privilege of snake dancing down the street. The excess energy so stored up and fed by displeasure and disgruntlement, was bound to blow off the roof some place.

In Prague, nine boys, average age about twenty, were shot in the jailyard, not so much for what they had done, but as an example, a piece of terror. In Madison the boys were permitted to run around with their shirts hanging out until they became exhausted. Then they went home tired, wiser and somewhat dirtied up. Their outburst was not exactly praiseworthy. It was just cussed.

The praiseworthy thing about the whole affair was the manner in which the police handled it.

NINE MILLION JOHN DOES

Every employee who is expecting to benefit some day from the old age insurance provision of the federal social security act needs to take care that he doesn't become a "John Doe."

The "John Doe" list of the social security board already numbers some nine million names. This is the list where social security numbers are placed when they have been omitted from employers' returns or because of some other mixup in the records. Although a majority of them undoubtedly will be restored to the regular rolls in time, their presence there now emphasizes the importance of employees keeping their own records.

There are several possibilities for error in the social security bookkeeping. One is the failure of employers to make complete returns. Another is duplication of accounts due to some workers having obtained two social security cards, giving one to one employer and the other to another employer. Numerous mixups also have been traced to the failure of some employees to give precisely the same name when changing from one job to another.

Careful employees will keep individual records, listing the wages paid and the period, whether a week, month or year, during which they were paid. Any employee who is in doubt about the standing of his account, or who recalls that he may have been careless in his reports, can obtain a statement of his record from the social security board and would be wise to do so.

These precautions will reduce the possibility of confusion and delay when the employee reaches the age of beneficence.

AND THE NAVY SAYS—

The President's statement that miscalculations in the design of recently built destroyers which tended to make them "top-heavy" have been corrected is reassuring but may not be conclusive to everyone.

The President himself said frankly that he could not explain fully the meaning of the term "metacentric height" which seems to have been the point of error in the design, and he suggested to reporters that inquiry be made of someone more familiar with scientific nomenclature.

A further suggestion might be that perhaps it would be still more reassuring if an explanation of the whole matter came directly from the navy itself. The explanation of what was wrong and what has been done to correct the defect undoubtedly could be given without disclosing any naval secrets.

In these times, naval efficiency is a question of special public concern. Any suggestion that defective boats are being built and put into service would naturally arouse considerable anxiety.

There is no implication that naval authorities are not exercising the greatest care in new constructions as well as in the maintenance and operation of existing craft. But the question has been raised in the minds of many as to the efficiency of the new destroyers.

The public can best be reassured by an explanation from a naval expert who knows how destroyers should be designed.

DALE HARRISON'S In Old New York

New York—Jack Dempsey has been hopping busily about this autumn, what with two restaurants in New York, some fight officiating now and then, a manufactory on the side, and his Dempsey-Vanderbilt Hotel at Miami Beach, Fla. Even such a whirl of activity, however, can't keep him long from his principal delight, which is to cavalcade his two young daughters to the sunshine of Central Park during the afternoon.

Dempsey believes this will be "the" season for Florida—a belief predicated on the assumption that few winter vacationers will care to trifle with Mr. Hitler's submarines off the coast of Europe. He has, therefore, been a talent scout in addition to his other autumn chores, rounding up entertainers for the Florida hostelry. Performers who already have bowed to the Dempsey persuasion are Sophie Tucker, Joe Lewis (but not Joe Louis), Harry Richman, the Ritz Brothers and Milton Beale.

The former heavyweight champion's greatest pride is in what he calls the "Tex Rickard Memorial Pool" which he has built in Miami Beach in memory of the promoter who made Dempsey the greatest money fighter of history. The Midas touch of Rickard is recalled by the plaque over the grilled entrance of the pool: "Million Dollar Gate."

For whimsy, Dempsey has christened the 13 cabanas surrounding the polo the "Long Count Cabana Club" and Number 1 is "Punney Cabana," with the others bearing the names of Dempsey's best known ring foes. The pool itself is called "The Tank"—a prize ring term used when a fighter "takes a dive."

Just Between Myself:

The Book-of-the-Month Club writes to advise that you were in error when you said it had chosen Elliot Arnold's "Only the Young" as one of its selections. Your respect for the Club ought to increase, because as I recall you said "Only the Young" was very dull. That article you see Lady Suzanne Wilkins so earnestly crocheting here and there around town is an Afghan which her husband, Sir Hubert, will take along on his next exploring journey to the cold lands. I assume Sir Hubert will also take along plenty of red flannel underwear to back it up, just in case his Lady dropped a stitch in the Stork Club or some place. . . . Burr, the drama critic for The Billboard, is the first theatre reviewer I've noticed in ten years to dare say that Helen Hayes' acting isn't always superlative. When she had great roles she was great, but as some of us have silently suspected for a long time, her husband, Charlie MacArthur, and his playmate collaborator, Ben Hecht, aren't super-hot as dramatists, and their "Ladies and Gentlemen" is not too good, even with Miss Hayes as its leading woman. . . .

Joan Blaine is one of the sweetest of the stage ladies; always smiling, never cross. . . . You ought to be in Blue Barron's cheering section—you're both undersized and tending toward roly-poly lungs; so what? Napoleon had a girl, too. . . . Don't print that horrible pun Horace Heidt told you. Remember? His trumpet player is Bobby Hackett, and when someone asked Horace the other night who it was who played the trumpet solo of one of the pieces, Horace replied: "I cannot tell a lie, I did it with my little Hackett." It is puns like that which make life unbearable. . . . Just heard where station WBAF got its name. The letters are the initials of four vital elements—Water, Earth, Air, Fire. . . . The "Alan Reed" who works on more radio programs than any other performer, is really your old pal Teddy Bergman. Some movie company, with a view to giving him a buildup, told him to change his name, arguing that "Alan Reed" was better for billing purposes. Wonder how fellows like Akim Tamiroff escape the nomenclatural axe? . . . Bergman (or Reed, if you will) was figuring out the other day what a bad boy he had been during the last year. According to his figures he has (1) stolen nine million dollars, (2) killed 42 people, (3) assaulted a few dozen more, and (4) swindled at least 100 widows and orphans out of their life savings or inheritances. Those were some of his deeds while acting in crime dramas. . . . As if about 90 per cent-of all radio dramas aren't crimes!

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO
Saturday, Nov. 23, 1920

Mrs. J. P. Frank, who acted as county chairman in the Hoover campaign, had been appointed president of Outagamie county for the Wisconsin organization of Republican women.

Five members of the chamber of commerce and Kenneth Corbett, secretary, returned Friday night from Milwaukee where they attended the annual meeting of the state organization. They were B. J. Rohan, E. A. Dettman, T. W. Orblison, W. O. Thiede and F. E. Schlitz.

Mrs. W. H. Killen was elected president of Over the Teacups club at a meeting Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. R. Wheaton, 741 E. John street. She was to succeed Mrs. Frank Clippinger. Mrs. Joseph Koffand was elected vice president to succeed Mrs. H. J. Ingold and Mrs. John King was to succeed Mrs. Smith McLandress as secretary-treasurer. The original highway budget of $306,000 for Winnebago county was cut $41,000 Friday by the county board.

25 YEARS AGO
Saturday, Nov. 28, 1914

For the first time in the history of Appleton, winter swimming was in vogue. The swimming tank at the Elks club, idle the previous winter, was in use every night.

D. J. Boyle reported that those in the vicinity of Appleton subject to the war tax were rapidly making the necessary arrangements for payment.

Engelbert Liethen received a letter the previous day from his brother in Manfort, Germany, in which he said that the allies had destroyed a zeppelin factory at Disseldorf during an air raid.

Appleton poultry men that year were to enter the Great Midwest Poultry show scheduled at Chicago in December. A. J. Shannon was to send 19 white Wyandottes and H. H. Ruth was to exhibit 6 rose-combed white Minors.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

TWO LEAVES

Two leaves were blown through the fading gold
Of an autumn day that was growing old.
And one was desolate and inclined
To grieve for glories left behind;

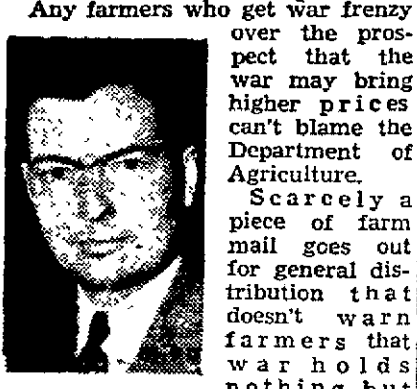

For the uninterrupted view
Of mountain-tops, and skyline's blue;
For robin's gay companionship,
And summer suns that dim and dip.

Though natural to feel bereft,
The Tree, the living Tree is left!
But the other leaf said cheerfully:
"What matters most to you and me."

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—Correspondence from far behind the front:

Grover

Any farmers who get war frenzy over the prospect that the war may bring higher prices can't blame the Department of Agriculture.

Scarcely a piece of farm mail goes out for general distribution that doesn't warn farmers that war holds nothing but misery and de-ception for them. The last war brought riches for many who plowed up the plains for grain. The gains, say the department, have been lost a thousandfold in dust storms, ruined farms and fore-closed mortgages.

Secretary Wallace is himself a one-man peace movement. He rarely passes a press conference without trying to get out a message to farmers that there is nothing for them in the war business.

To Heck With It
Look magazine says 21 out of 50 Washington correspondents interviewed think the United States is an even bet to get in the war and 12 more figure it is an odds-on bet that we will.

Look didn't ask us, but except on blue Mondays we say devil take the war, a pox on both their houses and let them pull their own chest-nuts out of the fire.

Sitting Standing
Spectators will get a kick out of the daily lie told in the Supreme Court. At 12 o'clock noon a muffled buzzer is heard from behind the mile-high red velvet draperies back of the nine empty black-upholstered chairs. In a majestic ballet the justices file out through the curtains, three through the center led by Chief Justice Hughes and three from either end.

Altho' Justice now there is a vacancy since Justice Butler is dead. Solemnly they take places behind their chairs while the marshal invites all who have business with the court to draw nigh for "the court is now sitting." But it isn't there they stand, until the Chief Justice signals them to take their seats.

Just In Case
When the President is away from the White House, as he is during Thanksgiving, the secret service and police guard continues only slightly abated. We hove into the executive office while the President was at Hyde Park and were confronted by two White House cops in uniform and two of the Secret Service in business suits. They recognized the cut of our jib and didn't throw us out, but they weren't missing anything.

They are paid to be scared all the time that somebody is trying to plant a bomb in the White House.
Good Neighbors At Work
Two sons of former Presidents of Panama attended a press conference of Acting Secretary of State Summer Welles.

Rogelio Alfaro, son of Richardo Alfaro, works in the press section at the Pan-American Union. He is tall and as casual as a Yale don. Harmadio Arias, son of President Harmadio Arias, is studying for a doctor of laws degree at Columbia. He was studying in Paris when the war shunted out all foreign students.

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

Well, here's surprising news. The movie folks have at last finished producing "Gone With the Wind" and will release it next month. That's the novel written away back years ago by Margaret Mitchell, if you're old enough to remember.

It will take 3 hours and 40 minutes on the screen, which is a long time to keep awake in a movie house these days. Hollywood has been working on the picture all these years because it had trouble finding anybody there who could read that many pages of any book without a collapse.

It's expected to make the Civil war authentic and prove to the satisfaction of millions of Americans that there really was a war between the north and south. I expect it to be a big novelty, as it will be one of the few movies for a long time in which Mickey Rooney, Deanna Durbin and Tyrone Power haven't appeared.

The Germans are dropping mines from airplanes by attaching 'em to parachutes. There's nothing those nazis don't think of.

Disease Affecting Fruit Orchards in Vicinity of DePere

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—El. L. Chambers, chief state entomologist in the department of agriculture, reported today on a brief survey in the Fox river valley which show infestations of San Jose scale, a disease affecting fruit trees.

A short investigation undertaken at the request of J. N. Kavanagh, Brown county agricultural agent, revealed serious infestations in the vicinity of DePere, he said.

Conditions there are serious enough to make necessary an educational campaign this winter and a cleanup campaign next spring, he announced.

The area between Green Bay and DePere he designated as the worst locally, but he said that a severe winter might help to reduce the spread of the disease. He warned also, however, that a mild winter might accentuate it. The scale affects apple, plum, sweet cherry, lilac, mountain ash and other varieties of trees, he explained.

Under the Capitol Dome

BY JOHN WINGAARD

Madison—Almost every other chronicler of Wisconsin politics during the last few months has tapped out on his typewriter reports of Senator LaFollette's supposed indecision about a party ticket for his 1930 reelection campaign.

Some politicians for reasons best known to themselves have circulated the story that LaFollette will run as a New Deal Democrat; others have whispered the more novel theory that he will return to the old LaFollette shelter, the Republican party, and one of the best known political writers purports to know that LaFollette has considered a run on the rare Independent ticket.

This column makes no profession of knowing what's going on in the LaFollette mind, but prefers to cling to the logical opinion that he will do what 300,000 of his followers expect him to do, run on his own Progressive ticket. Until there is more concrete evidence, there is more concrete evidence than guess and rumor, most observers acquainted with the political situation must agree that it is a reasonable presumption.

As was predicted here and elsewhere when the board of control personnel was detached from the payroll with the welfare reorganization act, reverberations are apparent. From Arthur W. Pohn of Waunakee, often a candidate but never a victor, comes a bitter denunciation of the department of public welfare because he says it is costing the taxpayers more money than the old decentralized system of administration.

Pohn's public charges would get more attention if it wasn't pretty generally known that he resents the fact that Heil passed him over when the new jobs in the department were filled. Even if his charges are substantiated, and they cannot be until the new department has functioned for a representative period, Pohn will be marked, as a lame duck, and his complaints, whether legitimate or not, will be ignored.

However, it can be forecast that the welfare reorganization act will be the best remembered and the most praised of the whole Republican reorganization program. Contrary to Pohn's premise the purpose of the act was not only to economize, but to make possible improved welfare services through the correlation of similar functions and agencies, and to render more services for the same outlay of money.

Reports reaching the division of research in the governor's office show that the huge highway industry, including materials dealers and contractors, is divided on the issue of the administration's investigation of the Highway commission.

It is known that some of the tips on which the investigators have been working were supplied by men in the high field. At the same time there are bitter criticisms of Heil and the research department for its inquiry, and the methods with which it is being conducted, from other representatives of the highway business.

Secretary of State Fred R. Zimmerman in a sense got the last word in his dispute with the governor over legality of his pension bill veto. When the supreme court ordered

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

CR
As a general rule readers come right back at me whenever they find an opening in my defense, and I can take it with pleasure. In my time, more than the lifetime of many readers, I have collected a large file of what are to me exceedingly interesting and instructive letters from readers on the general subject of exposure to cold and wet and the effects, real or theoretical, of such exposure. And these communications cover nearly all of the concepts on which is based the traditional notion that such exposure directly causes or at any rate predisposes to certain illnesses, notably respiratory affections.

I enjoy an argument as well as any one, but it is impracticable to carry on such an argument in the limited space available. So I have incorporated my side of it in the booklet "Call it Cr," which tells what I think about bronchial trouble, sinusitis, coryza, pneumonia, includes my recipe for "fool proof cough medicine," "n" everything, all for twenty-five cents and a 1-cent-stamped envelope bearing your address.

Yesterday I promised to name and recommend a remedy which, in my opinion, is of real value both as a prophylactic or preventive to take in time of epidemic or great prevalence of the cri and as a first-aid treatment when one is coming down with any form of respiratory infection.

The remedy is an old stand-by. One guess—and no prize if you guess right the first time, for that only signifies that you read this column more or less regularly. Yes, it is quinine.

Fresh air and exercise are my favorite prescriptions in my own family and among friends—I'm more or less a therapeutic nihilist, that is, I don't believe much in the efficacy of medicine, and I have to be so ill that I am no longer quite responsible before I'll consent to take any medicine at any time.

For example I think digitalis in any case of heart trouble is just a fine old medical tradition and altho I'm a coward in regard to enduring pain I'd stand any ordinary ache or pain for several hours before I'd resort to a dose of the popular pain-killer which some people take for the slightest discomfort, worry or fatigue.

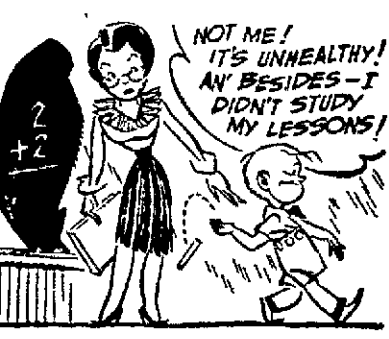

But I can't take that attitude in respect to quinine. The testimony of a great many readers over many years has convinced me that quinine deserves the reputation it has gained, both as a preventive and as a relief for the cri. Likewise the absence of any hint or suggestion of harmful results from quinine confirms my belief that the remedy is safe for any one to use.

For prophylactic or preventive I recommend that children over three years of age take one grain of quinine sulphate in tablet, pill or capsule, daily during an epidemic. Children over eight may take one grain twice daily. Adults take one grain three times daily. In treatment of any acute respiratory infection, whatever you call it at

Zimmerman to publish the act despite its partial veto, he followed instructions literally. He published not only the effective portions of the statute, but also the vetoed parts, the latter marked with huge, heavy crosses in black ink. To top it off, he published Heil's veto message giving reasons for the cancellation of the appropriation which would have made possible higher pensions for 48,000 aged persons in Wisconsin.

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
All Science Editor
Madison, Wis. Every time science changes an old custom, the medical profession has to look for queer health hazards.
The new vogue of colored blackboards is the latest example, as told in the American Journal of Public Health by Harold W. Ruf and William Z. Fluck, of the Wisconsin state board of health.
In general scientists have reported that writing-boards of light color, with dark chalks, are about twice as easy on the eye as the time-honored blackboards with white chalk. The Wisconsin health authorities found that some of the colored chalks contain lead. Further that chalk dust from these colored crayons floated through the school room. The U. S. Public Health Service has ruled that more than 1.5 milligrams of lead per cubic meter of air is hazardous. The crayons in some cases put as much as 5.9 milligrams of lead in chalk dust in the air.
The report pointed out that not all colored crayons contain lead, and stated that this poisonous metal can be eliminated from those colors in which it is used.

Map 5-Year Study To Solve Problem Of River Wastes

Seek Method of Eliminating Sulphite Pollution By Paper Mills

A "5-year plan" that has nothing to do with Stalin or communism is being proposed to paper manufacturers of Wisconsin. Its purpose is to end the pollution of streams by sulphite waste, and its preparation follows a meeting of sulphite mill operators here last week with the state stream pollution committee and the state board of health.

At that time, J. M. Conway, president and general manager of Hoberg Paper mills, Green Bay, was named head of a committee to arrange and finance a research program, working through the Institute of Paper Chemistry. Agreement forms were sent this week to the heads of all Wisconsin sulphite mills, by signing which they pledge financial support of a 5-year research program.

Ten mills, representing 90 per cent of the sulphite pulp produced in the state, already have agreed to such a program, Conway said, and expressed confidence that the three mills which have not yet signed will do so. One is located in the northern section of the state, one central, and one west, and one of these was shut down until recently.

Five years may be needed to complete the research and develop a practical method of disposing of sulphite waste, Conway declared.

Big Problem

"We must start from the beginning, and we face a big problem," he said. "At present, there is nothing in this country, or in the world, for that matter, that disposes of sulphite liquor completely and economically. The waste, in fact, ceases to do partially, but one of these would require an investment at our mill, for example, of half a million dollars, with no return. Faced with such an expenditure, we would have to go out of business."

"There is another process that produces certain by-products, but these are not sufficiently in demand to make the process economically feasible."

"And, even when a process is finally developed in the laboratory, it will have to be proven in a pilot plant. Laboratory findings cannot be accepted as practical until they have been tried out under actual production conditions."

The Institute of Paper Chemistry, doubtless will assign specialists to this particular research work, Conway said, with such other assistance as may be necessary.

Pressure on paper manufacturers to solve the sulphite waste problem has been increased by health and conservation departments since a 9-month pollution survey conducted at Green Bay, under the joint auspices of the state board of health and the Green Bay Metropolitan Sewerage district, reported that the Fox river valley sewage disposal program, recently completed at a cost of more than $5,000,000, could only eliminate about 8 per cent of the pollution load. Of the remaining 92 per cent, 88 per cent is from sulphite liquor, and the balance from "white water" and miscellaneous wastes, the survey report stated. Until this condition is corrected, the river never can support fish life consistently, and "will develop unsatisfactory conditions in times of hot weather and low stream flow."

The high oxygen demand of the sulphite liquor depletes the oxygen in the river to a point where fish suffocate, and odor-producing wastes are not properly oxidized, it was pointed out.

CAST REHEARSES FOR PLAY TO BE PRESENTED SUNDAY

Little Chute—The cast of "Superstitious Sadie" is shown above rehearsing a scene from the play which will be presented by St. John high school juniors Sunday evening in the school auditorium. The Rev. G. Van Nuland is the director. Left to right in the picture are: Leona West, as Mrs. Meachan, the town's biggest gossip; Evelyn Doyle, taking the part of Sadie Suggs, a North Carolina hill billy and summer guest at the Ashcroft home; attentively to the latest gossip; while Florence Vanden Heuvel, cast as Calory the colored maid, tries to get in on it too. On the far right, in the same order, are: Ann Van Grinsven, as Aunt Mae, the divorced wife of George Quarley; Stanley Versteegen, playing Lawyer Chadd; and Willard McCabe, taking the part of George Quarley, the big game hunter and divorced husband. ## 'Superstitious Sadie' To Be Staged Sunday In School Auditorium

Little Chute—"Superstitious Sadie" will be presented by the members of the junior class of St. John high school at the school auditorium Sunday evening. The play, written by Jay Tobias and James Blakeley, is a three-act farce. It is being given under the direction of the Rev. G. Van Nuland.

It was presented to about 700 pupils of St. John school Friday afternoon. The part of Sadie, a hillybilly superstitious girl who arrives at the Ashcroft home, is played by Evelyn Doyle; Uncle George, athletic and high tempered, Willard McCabe; May, a refined young lady—Rosemary Peerenboom; Iris Ashford, beautiful widow—Donata Van Zee; Ramon De Castano—Clement Hurst. Others who will take parts are: Gilda Wulgar, Florence Vanden Heuvel, Stanley Versteegen, Leona West, James Koehn, Merlin Versteegen and Ann Van Grinsven.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Vanden Bergt and son Donald will leave Sunday for Cleveland, Ohio, where they will make their home. Mr. Vanden Bergt has accepted a position with the Lissay Wire Works Corporation of that city. They have been making their home with Mrs. Ann Metz the last five months.

Miss Annabelle Metz of Milwaukee is visiting for a few days at the home of her mother, Mrs. Ann Metz.

Chief Justice Marshall May Come Out of the Cold

BY EDDY GILMORE
Washington—(AP)—Chief Justice John Marshall—sometimes called the father of the supreme court—is about to come in out of the cold.

For years his bronze statue has stood at the back of the capitol, off the beaten track of the tourist and sightseer. Lately it has been growing green with age.

Patriots in the halls of congress, noticing that there was no statue of George Washington on the capitol grounds, started a movement to have Marshall and to move in Washington.

But where, asked local artists and admirers of Marshall, would the chief justice go?

Rep. Brewster (R-Me.) replied with a bill to move Marshall to the new supreme court.

The court asked Justice Stone to investigate. He went over, looked at the bronze and presented a plan which calls for Marshall to go inside the court building.

Art-lovers are now asking, what about the new Washington?

Once before the capitol had an outside statue of the father of the country at the capitol and, although it was moved, it's still in the city.

The Smithsonian institution has stuck away in a corner 50 feet to the port-side of a lot of printing presses. That's where it landed after being banished from the capitol.

Will this Washington be moved back?

If it is, it may start another art controversy the like of which recent congresses haven't seen. The trouble with the banished Washington is that the father of the country doesn't have a shirt on.

Made in Italy, the statue is along Roman lines. Washington has on a toga and the sculptor didn't bother to make it hide his chest.

Wisconsin Michigan Power Company Sign Lighted by 338 Bulbs

A feature of the decorations on College avenue again this year is the Wisconsin Michigan Power company Christmas sign on the firm's office building.

It is a huge 4-pointed star with a background of colored lights arranged in circles. The star from tip to tip is 17 feet, 6 inches and the diameter of the largest circle is 14 feet, 6 inches. The points of the star extend 18 inches beyond the circle.

A total of 338 light bulbs, 96 white, ones, 46 red, 108 green and 88 amber, light the decoration. It was designed by Norman Zanzig.

Badgers Will Sponsor Dancing Party Tonight

A dancing party will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at the Appleton, Y. M. C. A. for members of the Badger Hi-Y club. Ray Brasch is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements.

The Stagg Hi-Y club members will meet at the Y building at 8 o'clock to begin a scavenger hunt. The club last night sponsored a dance for high school students after the basketball game.

O'Hare was shot to death in his automobile while trying to shake off his assassins, a finish as spectacular as most of his financial ventures.

Remus became known as a bootleg satrap in 1921. Within a few years, it was learned, widespread liquor deals enriched him to the fabulous tune of $20,000,000. At one time it was said that he controlled 62 per cent of the whiskey in the nation.

Besides the time he served in Atlanta, Remus was committed to an Ohio county jail for a year. His fines totaled $100,000.

Chancellor said the filing of the claim was intended as the beginning of a campaign by Remus to obtain full settlement from all persons involved in the 15-year-old liquor deal.

Pageant Will be Feature Of Services at Trinity Church

Thanksgiving and memorial services will take place in several of the local churches tomorrow morning, the sermon and music to be woven around those two themes.

St. Matthew Lutheran and First English Lutheran churches will hold memorial services for deceased members of the congregations. At the latter church the Rev. F. C. Reuter, pastor, will preach on "Our Hope Concerning the Dead," while at St. Matthew church the Rev. Sylvester Johnson, pastor, will speak at the German service at 8:15 and English at 9:30.

A thank offering service under the direction of Women's Missionary society will be held at the 10:30 service Sunday morning at Trinity English Lutheran church. A pageant, "The Ever-Widening Circle," will be presented by a group of women and children, and the pastor, the Rev. C. H. Zeidler, will speak on "Watch, Therefore."

At Memorial Presbyterian church there will be a special Thanksgiving service conducted by Mrs. W. D. Farnum's Sunday school class at 9:30, and at the morning service at 10:30 a Thanksgiving church service will be held. The Rev. Robert K. Bell, pastor, will preach on "Thanks Be to God."

45th Anniversary
The forty-fifth anniversary of St. John Evangelical and Reformed church will be observed Sunday morning and during the service a brief history of the church will be read and the reception of new members will take place. The sermon, based on the anniversary theme, will be entitled "Hitherto Has God Helped."

"The Divine Comfort Against Death" is the theme of the sermon to be given by the Rev. F. M. Brandt, pastor, at St. Paul Lutheran church Sunday morning. "Overcoming Our Discouragements" is the subject on which the Rev. G. E. Blum, pastor, will speak at Emmanuel Evangelical church.

Dr. John B. Hanna, pastor of First Congregational church, will preach on the subject, "Does the End Justify the Means" at the morning worship at his church Sunday. Zion Lutheran church will mark the close of the church year with an English confessional and holy communion service at 8:15 and a sermon at the English service at 9 o'clock on "A Retrospect Upon the New Ending Church Year." There will be a German service at 10:45.

Methodist Sermon
Dr. Harry C. Culver, pastor of First Methodist church, will speak on "A Christ Like God" at the morning service at his church tomorrow. At First Baptist church the sermon theme of the Rev. R. H. Spangler, pastor, will be "Some Old Testament Pictures of Christ." Fellowship or Partnership with Christ" is the sermon theme of the Rev. R. E. Ziesemer, pastor of Mt. Olive Lutheran church, for tomorrow.

At the Gospel temple the pastor, the Rev. C. D. Goudie, will preach at the morning service, but Paul Hild, evangelist, will preach in the evening on "The World's Greatest Event." "Thanksgiving, a Day of Prayer and Praise" is the subject of the sermon to be given by the Rev. Lowell Rodie, pastor of Appleton tabernacle, Sunday morning. In the evening he will preach on "Moral Laziness."

The Rev. N. J. Remmenga, pastor of Wesleyan Methodist church, will give a Thanksgiving message, "What Shall I Render Unto God?" at the morning service, and will speak in the evening on "Heaven a Better Country."

Bishop Murphy Dies In Milwaukee Hospital

Milwaukee—Bishop Joseph A. Murphy, S. J., former vicar apostolic of British Honduras and vice president of Marquette university in 1911-19, died today at St. Joseph's hospital. He was 82 years old.

Bishop Murphy suffered an attack of heart disease last Tuesday. He was born at Dundalk, Ireland, and came to America in 1866. He was ordained a priest in 1886. He taught for several years at St. Louis university, Detroit university, St. Mary's college, Cincinnati, all Jesuit institutions.

He then was assigned to the Jesuit mission in British Honduras and in 1911 came to Marquette university here. He was made dean at St. Louis university in 1919, serving until 1923, when Pope Pius XI made him a bishop. Bishop Murphy returned to Belize, British Honduras, that year, serving there until last June, when he retired because of ill health.

Endowment funds for colleges decreased by three per cent during 1938-39.

BEFORE AND AFTER REMODELING

The two houses pictured above and at the right are the same, except that the one at the top has been touched by the miracle of remodeling. The house is owned by Fred C. Wichmann, 703 E. Randall street. The old-fashioned porch was removed and replaced by the modern vestibule and stoop. Shrubbery was removed and the eaves were cut from 20 inches to modern lines. The home re-roofed and re-sided. The interior also was modernized. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Frank W. Hoard Of Ft. Atkinson Dies at Madison

Publisher of Hoard's Dairyman Succumbs After Several Weeks' Illness

Madison—(AP)—Frank W. Hoard, president of W. D. Hoard and Sons company, publishers of Hoard's Dairyman and the Jefferson County Union of Ft. Atkinson, died at the Wisconsin General hospital today. He was 73 years old.

Hoard, son of the late W. D. Hoard, former governor of Wisconsin, had been a patient at the hospital for several weeks. He underwent an operation two weeks ago but failed to rally. He was critically ill for several days before his death.

Hoard, born at Columbus, Wis., July 26, 1866, was a resident of Ft. Atkinson from 1870, when his father founded the Jefferson County Union, a weekly newspaper from which grew the nationally known Hoard's Dairyman, until his death.

Hoard and Luella West were married at Ravenswood, Ill., Nov. 23, 1888. She and a son, W. D. Hoard, Jr., and a daughter, Mrs. W. J. Kerscheneiter, survive. Hoard also left a brother, A. R. Hoard, president of the Better Six Knitting Mills.

Governor's Secretary
Hoard was educated in the Ft. Atkinson schools and the University of Wisconsin Law school. He was private secretary to his father while the latter was governor in 1889-90. He became business manager of Hoard's Dairyman in 1890 and following the death of his father in 1918 became its president and general manager.

In partnership with H. H. Curtis, founder of the Creamery Package Manufacturing company, he built the Black Hawk hotel in Ft. Atkinson. He served as mayor of Ft. Atkinson but although a lifelong Republican neither sought nor accepted other political office.

Hoard was a 32nd degree Mason and a member of the Knights of Pythias.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Hoard home in Ft. Atkinson at 2:30 p. m. Monday by the Rev. C. W. Boorman of the Ft. Atkinson Congregational church. Ft. Atkinson stores will remain closed for 30 minutes during these services. Interment will be in the family lot at Evergreen cemetery, where Masonic services will be held.

Coated Paper Given Permit to Build Tanks

The Appleton Coated Paper company, 1200 N. Meade street, today received a permit from the city building inspector to install three 10,000 gallon oil tanks to store the oil supply for the plant's Diesel engines. Cost of the tanks is estimated at $1,300.

Paul Gebbein, 1739 N. Alvin street, received a permit to build an addition to his garage at an approximate cost of $25. The addition will be 6 by 16 feet in size.

Same Old Stuff—Cloudy and Cool

Little Change in Temperature Expected Tonight and Sunday

Almost with monotonous regularity, the weatherman again has predicted cloudy weather tonight and Sunday with very little change in temperatures. Clouds have checked the sun practically all week and temperatures have moved in a narrow, cool range.

Mercury in the thermometer on the roof of the Post-Crescent building showed 35 degrees early this afternoon while maximum and minimum temperatures during the 24-hour period preceding 9 o'clock were 42 degrees at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and 35 degrees at 8 o'clock this morning, according to records at the power plant of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company.

Highest and lowest temperatures in the nation yesterday as reported at official weather bureau stations were 76 degrees at Los Angeles, Calif., and 14 degrees at Pueblo, Colo., according to the Associated Press.

German Students to Present Snow White

Leading characters in the German play, "Schneewittchen und die sieben Zwerge" or "Snow White and The Seven Dwarfs," which the German department of Appleton High school will present Tuesday evening, Dec. 19, are now meeting in reading rehearsals with Miss Sophia Haase, German instructor. These first rehearsals are being held, Miss Haase indicated in an effort to perfect pronunciation.

Genevieve Schaefer will have the role of Snow White. The part of the prince who releases her from her spell will be played by Fred Heinritz. Robert Sager will be the hunter who refuses to kill the princess at the commands of the queen. The wicked queen will be interpreted by Ruth Gust. The seven dwarfs will be Bluck, Margaret Baumer; Shick, Oscar Boldt; Strick, Alvin Brown; Nick, Inez Deschler; Dick, Barbara Ehr; Knick, Shirley Miller; and Pick, Bertha Smyrnes.

The play is an original German adaptation of the Grimm fairy story of the lovely princess who ate a poisoned apple which was given to her by her jealous stepmother. The outline of the plot follows the recent screen version in all important details, Miss Haase stated.

The play will be the traditional Christmas production of the German department. Friends and parents are invited to attend and may receive tickets without cost from German students at a later date.

8,000 Troops May Be Used in Army's Biggest Problem

3rd Division Will be Used in Landing Operations Exercise

Washington.—The war department, it was reported reliably today, is considering using the 3rd Division of some 8,000 officers and men early next year in joint army-navy maneuvers of unprecedented magnitude.

The maneuvers, a test of landing operations employing also a large number of sailors and marines, are to be on the Pacific coast, possibly in conjunction with the annual war games of the fleet.

The war in Europe, the administration's hemisphere defense preparations, construction on Pacific naval bases and cool relations with Japan combine to make them of more interest than any similar exercises in recent years.

The army's extraordinary winter training schedule for five "streamlined" divisions, announced after president's proclamation of a limited national emergency, already has been revised to keep units of the 3rd Division at their western home posts while the others have been massed in the south.

Cancel Joint Exercises

Under originally-announced plans, the 3rd Division was to have been concentrated at Ft. Lewis, Wash. Without hinting at future plans, officials said this division was being trained piecemeal.

Meanwhile, it was reported authoritatively that the general staff was studying proposals to use the entire division in the joint maneuvers. A final decision has not yet been reached.

Combined army-navy exercises were scheduled for last winter in the Caribbean but were cancelled unexpectedly. Instead, the army sent only observers to the scene of navy-marine corps shore operations at Culebra island.

Subsequently congress provided funds for the maneuvers of next spring, after the war department estimated the army's share of extra expenses at $46,056. Major General Robert McBeck of the general staff said, at the time, it was planned to employ merely the 30th infantry regiment from San Francisco and artillery from Fort Lewis, both of which are included now in the 3rd Division.

Radio Installed at Hobart Schoolhouse

Royalton.—The Hobart school now has a radio and pupils are receiving weekly vocal lessons broadcast from the University of Wisconsin Extension division at Madison. Kenneth and Stuart Lindsay of Little Wolf have received word of the illness of their brother, Dr. William C. Lindsay of Kellogg, Idaho, who at present is in a hospital in Spokane, Wash., recovering from an operation.

Miss Evelyn Casey, who for some time has been employed as stenographer at a Milwaukee hotel, has been granted a three-month leave of absence, and plans to spend the winter in Arizona where she has accepted a temporary position.

The young people of the Congregational church meet Saturday evening with Mrs. Edgar Lathrop, pianist, for their practice.

Miss Amelia Ritchie of Los Angeles, Calif., former Waupaca county and for some time superintendent of Thea Clark hospital at Neenah, is chairman of one of a committee which is planning four Christmas parties for 2,000 children of the last bowl migrates, who are agricultural workers along the Pacific coast. Each child will receive the gift of a garment, and a toy and every mother a can of some kind of food and package of cereal.

Three Hollywood Men Held on Girl's Charge

Los Angeles.—Preliminary hearing for three men charged with suspicion of attack involving a 16 year old Hollywood girl was continued yesterday until Monday.

The three, released on bond after their arrest are James Davis, professional football player, and two men booked as Morton Braden, 27, and Wilbur Braden, 25. All have denied charges of the girl.

At the hearing the girl testified she was selling charity raffle tickets Monday when induced to go to the apartment of the Braden brothers.

The girl's father, who signed the complaint, said his daughter returned home in an hysterical condition.

Davis said he was with a football group at the Braden apartment, but denied any association with the girl.

Mr. Robitschek and Miss Betten will go to Minneapolis next Tuesday to be guests of the former's parents on Thanksgiving day when a reception will be held in honor of the betrothed couple.

More Than 60 Fremont Hunters Travel North As Deer Season Opens

Fremont.—More than sixty hunters including women, the largest group in history from Fremont and vicinity, left Thursday and Friday for the north woods to hunt deer.

The annual Red Cross drive, in charge of Mrs. Walter Neuschaefer and Mrs. Carl B. Abraham, ended Friday. The membership fees of 36 members and contributions totaled $50.50. One half of the amount will be sent to the national headquarters and the other half will go to the local fund which up to date is $137.58.

The library club has purchased twenty new books for the public library.

The Women Improvement club will meet Tuesday evening with Mrs. Carl Abraham.

Mr. and Mrs. William Greening, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Ristau, Sr., Mrs. Emma Leiby and Miss Genevieve Greening were guests at a party and Thanksgiving dinner Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Ristau, Jr., Neenah. The event was in honor of the fourth birthday anniversary of their son Robert.

Mrs. Albert Luedke entertained a schafkopf club Thursday. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Paul Zuehlke, Mrs. Carrie Springer and Mrs. John Drews.

The bridge club met with Mrs. Frank Looker Friday afternoon. Mrs. Ernest Blaz, Poy Sippi, is employed at the Lavern Lovejoy home caring for Mrs. Lovejoy, who is ill.

Bootleg Coal Mining Claims 2 More Lives

Shenandoah, Pa.—(AP)—Bootleg coal mining—an occupation so dangerous that it's being called "the suicide industry" in the anthracite region—added two more victims today to its long roster of death underground.

The crushed bodies of Joseph Kunia, 23, and George Kraulis, 48, were removed last night from a makeshift mine in which they had been entombed more than 10 hours. A sloping gangway of a coal hole they had been working on an isolated mountainside since they lost their regular jobs two years ago collapsed while they were 200 feet below the surface. Hospital physicians said they probably died instantly under the tons of earth, coal and rock that came tumbling down.

Fish-Game Group Plants 80,000 Fish Near Clintonville

Clover Leaf and Long Lakes are Stocked With Bullheads

Clintonville.—Members of the Fish and Game club this week planted about 80,000 fish in Clover Leaf lakes and Long lake. Most of the fish were bullheads brought here from LaCrosse by the conservation department. There were also some black bass fry planted in the lakes. About 10,000 bullheads were planted last week in the Pigeon river pond.

A large number of deer hunters from Clintonville left Friday for the north woods, where they will hunt over the weekend. Some of them plan to remain all of next week.

The S. O. E. club met Friday afternoon at the Masonic temple. Contract bridge was played, after which a luncheon was served. Prizes at cards were won by Mrs. J. E. Leyrer, Mrs. Reuben Lendved and Mrs. Richard Milbauer. The next meeting of the club will take place Dec. 8.

A regular meeting of the Order of Eastern Star will be held Tuesday evening, Nov. 28. Following the business session there will be a social hour.

Mrs. Eugene Schmidt entertained 12 guests at a dessert-bridge Thursday evening at her home on N. Twelfth street. High score at contract was made by Mrs. William Kuester.

Mrs. John Buehrens was hostess to her bridge club Tuesday evening. A dessert-luncheon was followed by three tables of contract, with prizes going to Mrs. Gordon Juetten, Mrs. William Shivelier and Mrs. Richard Klemm.

Winners at the weekly bridge tournament held Thursday evening at Hotel Marson were: Robert Olen and Mrs. J. W. Devine, first; Mrs. Ralph Laney and Mrs. James Kuester, second; for North and South: Mrs. A. B. Roberts and Mrs. G. W. Spang, first; Mrs. Robert Olen and Mrs. L. A. Heuer, second; for East and West: Because of Thanksgiving next Thursday, Nov. 30, there will be no tournament next week.

A large crowd attended a supper of the Methodist Ladies Aid society Thursday evening at the church parlors. During the afternoon there was a "hobby show" at which there were a number of interesting exhibits.

Mrs. Clement Bohr and daughter Dorothy are spending this week in Milwaukee at the home of her sister, Mrs. Clarence Jahn.

The circulation department of the Appleton Post-Crescent is interested in Clintonville by James Bohr, 46 Main street. Orders for subscriptions may be left with him. Subscribers may be carried by carriers should call Mr. Bohr, telephone 5871, before 7 p. m.

Warrant Officer and His Family Visit at Clintonville Home

Clintonville.—Warrant officer Roy F. Fisher of the United States army at Scott Field, Ill., spent Thanksgiving day and Friday at the home of his mother, Mrs. Cora Fisher on N. Main street. Visiting here with him were his children, "Priscilla, Roy, Jr., John and Kenneth. Another son, Walter, is a second lieutenant in the United States army and is stationed at Priest River, Idaho. The Fishers left for their home Saturday morning.

As sergeant major in the army, Mr. Fisher was stationed at Governor's Island, N. Y., for seven years before being promoted to his present position last year. He has been in the army service for the last 25 years. Warrant Officer Fisher is now in the administrative branch of government service at the army training base located near St. Louis. About 1,000 students are located at Scott Field, where they receive training in aviation, mechanics and gunning.

Two local young men, Kenneth Heide and Raymond Patterson, students at the University of Wisconsin, are enrolled in a C. A. A. training school for student air pilots at Madison. Under the Civil Aeronautics Authority, the class of 53 students will receive ground training and flight instruction.

Mrs. Herman Larson is spending a week with relatives at Oshkosh while Mr. Larson is on a business trip to Iowa.

Mrs. William Schumacher went to Madison Friday to spend a week with her daughter Mildred, a student at the university. Mr. Schumacher is at Land O Lakes, where he expects to spend a week deer hunting.

Ladies Aid Society in Meeting at Leeman

Leeman.—The Ladies Aid society of the Lutheran church met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Thomas Wilkinson, Jr. A short Thanksgiving sermon was given by the pastor, the Rev. Axel Blom. His text was "Where Are the Nine?" Hymns were sung by the group, followed by readings and a talk was given by Mrs. Erling Blom, president of the Women's Missionary Federation, who explained the work and activities of the organization.

The Rev. and Mrs. Blom were presented with a gift from members of the local branch of the Ladies Aid society, in honor of their recent marriage. The annual business meeting and election of officers was held. The report was read by the secretary, Miss Julia Thompson. Mrs. Clarence was elected president of the society. Mrs. Fred Falk, vice president, in place of Mrs. Bert Falk; Miss Julia Thompson, secretary, and Miss Gertrude Thompson, treasurer.

The next meeting of the society will be held on Thursday afternoon Dec. 21 at the home of Mrs. Fred Falk.

'Black Narcissus' Unique Story Of Anglican Nuns In Himalayas

By Jean Wiley Thickens

Like James Hilton's "Lost Horizon," the locale of Rumer Godden's unique novel, "Black Narcissus," is an isolated village in the Himalayas mountains of far Tibet. But here the similarity ends. "Lost Horizon" was a fantastic tale of religious fanaticism and the miraculous happenings this fanaticism occasioned amongst the villagers and the white visitors of a Tibetan monastery. While "Black Narcissus" is a factual, day-to-day record of the struggles of a group of Anglican nuns to establish a school and clinic. To be sure, the superstitious villagers had at first to be paid by the fabulously wealthy young native prince in whose father's abandoned castle the nunnery was located before they would come near the strange sisters or investigate the school.

The story is primarily a study in abnormal psychology; what the Freudians would call "victims of suppressed desires." A group of transplanted Anglican nuns, some of them young and pretty, deposited on the top of a 18,000-foot mountain where the wind never stopped blowing, and the only access to the outside world was on the backs of wild mountain ponies, must inevitably encounter problems too vast for even their varied abilities. Only in such strange and exotic surroundings where white men were practically unknown, would Dean, the charming cynic, hard-drinking resident agent have reminded Sister Superior Clodagh of her youthful sweetheart for whose love she had entered the nunnery. And only in such unusual surroundings would vain, flighty Sister Ruth have become emotional over the handsome young native prince who came to the school each morning to study English, dressed in satin coats, blazing jewels and reeking of his aphrodisiac black narcissus perfume. In the outside world these serious-faced nuns would have readily realized that the prince was a young pagan, with a brown skin and no slightest conception of the white man's code of ethics or religion.

"Black Narcissus" is a profound and exquisite story with a mystical atmosphere. It is also an amazing record of the patience and devotion of these deeply religious women whose career takes them from the steaming jungles of India to the icy wastes of the high Himalayas, where their efforts are unceasingly directed toward fighting disease, ignorance, and superstition amongst their charges, with no thought for their own comfort or safety. There is a strange serenity underlying their constant worries and struggles because each realizes that she is not struggling for her own gain, but is prompted by a passionate desire to be of service to the unfortunate. A gentle vein of humor lightens the most sombre passages. "Black Narcissus" is a genuine find, as

Strong Hand Fails to Beat Difficult Bid

BY ELY CULBERTSON

It's very pleasant to lie in ambush with a strong hand while the unsuspecting opponents bid themselves up to an impossible contract. After a while you can double and sit back to let the profits roll in. But after you have gone through all this you feel foolish if the opponents somehow or other manage to make their "impossible" contract. Such was the unfortunate experience of the West player in the hand below, taken from the recent Metropolitan championships in New York City.

North, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 spade	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
2 spades	Pass	3 diamonds	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 clubs	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass	Pass

North opened the bidding despite his holding of only two honor tricks, relying on his seven card spade suit to make up for the slight deficiency in high card strength. South properly bid only two hearts even though he held more than three and one-half honor tricks. The total lack of fit with spades was a deterrent to any very strong action at this point. At South's next turn he once more avoided a jump bid and equally properly refrained from bidding no trump. North once more rebid in spades and South now had a difficult bidding problem. North's minimum rebids discouraged South from getting past the three no trump level, but South was unwilling to try for nine tricks at no trump if North, as the bidding indicated, had the bulk of his strength in spades. After some thought, therefore, South chose to show his clubs. At this point West felt he had waited long enough. He quietly but firmly doubled. North passed, preferring clubs to either of South's other suits and realizing from the bidding that South had no support for spades. South had enough confidence in his partner's bidding to stay in the doubled contract and not to find a better contract at this dangerously high level.

West opened a low club, hoping to reduce the hand to no trump as quickly as possible. South led the lead came up to his own hand and was gratified to win the trick with his seven trumps. He then discarded the ace and king of hearts, discarding a low diamond from the dummy. On a third round of hearts West's queen fell and dummy ruffed with the club nine. The ace of spades next was cashed and South ruffed a low spade. South now led the jack of hearts and West had to ruff to prevent dummy from getting rid of the remaining diamond. Dummy over-ruffed with the club king and a spade was returned. South ruffed with the ten spot. South cashed the ace of clubs for his ninth trick and led his last heart. West had to ruff this for otherwise South would have his ten tricks. But West could not escape from the necessity of leading to South's strength of diamonds, thus permitting South to make his tenth trick and contract.

ARGUING BEFORE OTHERS

Dear Mrs. Post: Isn't it terribly rude for people to have disagreements before outsiders? I will tell you what happens whenever I go to my fiancée's house to eat (which I try to get out of as often as I can). Her parents almost always start arguing about something, usually something of no importance, and the first thing I know it has developed into a real quarrel. They say things to each other that they couldn't mean, and then each one tries to get me involved by taking sides. I really do not know what to do about it. My mother doesn't like this family anyhow, and if she knew how they act sometimes, she would have something to object to! I would certainly appreciate some advice on this, and thank you.

Answer: Quarreling at any time is dreadful, but quarreling before people—especially children or servants—is inexcusable. It is bad for children, undignified before servants, and shocking to friends. The only thing you can do is to seem completely unaware of any disagreement. When they appeal to you and you are forced to make some kind of answer, try to be noncommittal and not to get drawn into it. Say, "Sorry, but I don't know!" Or, "I was talking to Susie," and then try to keep on talking with her about something else.

A Son's Fiancee

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I are going to have a party on our 25th wedding anniversary. Would it be proper for my son's fiancée to stand in the receiving line at this time?

Answer: If their engagement has been announced—or if the announcement is to be made that eve-

Beauty and You

by PATRICIA LINDSAY

This season is definitely one of flippancy and "wows." Styles are lavish, parties elaborate and people are going in for hijinks—possibly in defiance of the war gloom. Last year's demure young thing is now debonair. She wears a heart-poking hat, elephant's teeth dangle from her wrists for luck and the brightest of accents snare your attention to her charm, especially the bright colors she wears on her fingertips!

Pale, soft cosmetic tones have gone with the wind. Softly tinted fingernails look "last year." Hands need to carry out the same swish costumes display so consequently the bolder, brighter, polishes have rushed into favor. Clear has the lead for it off-sets the deeper shades of winter, and actually dramatizes either dull or ning—then yes, of course. But not otherwise.

"Doctor" Not Always Good Taste.
Dear Mrs. Post: My future son-in-law is a Ph. D., and when we have the wedding invitations engraved, should he be called Dr. or Mr. on the forms?

Answer: On a wedding invitation, his title should be Mr. Dr. is properly used only when he is referred to professionally, or making a professional appearance. In other words, if you were sending out invitations to a lecture to be given by him, use of his title would be correct.

Corsages At The Wedding?

Dear Mrs. Post: My marriage will take place very soon—and I would like to know if the mothers (the groom's and mine) should wear corsages at the wedding.

Answer: They do wear them, perhaps more often than not, but they are not a wedding regulation, like the bride's bouquet and the boutonnières of the men in the bridal party.

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad however to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "Names and Signatures—Suffixes." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post, in care of this paper, P. O. Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y.

shiny black. Black needs red for contrast—wear it on your lips, your fingernails and in one accessory.

Do Your Nails Flake?
Here's a tip if you've been having trouble with brittle and flaking nails. Give them a shampoo twice a week with a special cream-while liquid that has been concocted to soften your cuticle and to give your nails the oils they need. Work it under the nail tips with an orange stick to dislodge that annoying black rim. The sponge-brush which accompanies this special lotion effectively scrubs your nails to beauty.

After you dry your nails thoroughly, push back the cuticle with your orange stick, starting at the base of the nail and working up each side separately. If you push down toward the base, you work against the natural growth of the cuticle and that causes annoying hangnails. And do be careful not to cut the corners of your nails! The nail fits into a socket which keeps it clinging close to the fingertip. If you cut or file away the corners you release it from its snug groove and then it is vulnerable for breaking or bending. It takes ages for a broken nail to grow again.

Limber Your Hands
If your hands are graceful, nicely groomed and painted with a good lubricating cream (you should know to keep them lovely) try this exercise: Press your hands, palm downward, against the seat of the chair on which you are sitting. Bring the heel of the hand up, pressing hard against the chair with the fingers, until only the very tip is pressing against the chair. Now press each finger, one at a time, against the chair as hard as possible. As if you were playing the scale on a piano very delicately! End the exercise by shaking the hands rapidly using a wrist movement, allowing the fingers to snap at each other as you shake!

"Tips on the Home Manicure"

Your role is to play dumb. Never take any of her leads. Never see any of her little gestures. Never be alone with her. Foil her craftiest plans by grabbing up some stranger, or if you can't get anybody else, and taking him or her along to spoil any chances of sentiment. Your wife is your best protection. Hang on to her petticoats like a scared child. Never go anywhere without her and make your devotion for her your theme song.

It won't take very much of this to make your lady philanderer think you are too stupid and old-fashioned and stodgy to be worth bothering with, and she will leave you for some more promising game. It may hurt your vanity to appear in such an unromantic light, but it will save you a lot of grief. There is nothing that so effectively weakens the amorous designs of a lady philanderer as to have Friend Wife hanging around in the background.

Dear Mrs. Dix—I have been engaged to a boy about a year and a half and for a long time he tried to get me to marry him secretly. Now he tells me that he is tired of me and doesn't love me any more. He says he did love me at one time and that I haven't done any particular thing to cause him to change. He just has done so. He still goes with me, but he says it is only because I want him to and because it would

School Needs Cooperation, Cordial Support of Parent

BY ANGELO PATRI

"Mother, you'll have to go to school."

"Now what? You don't mean to say you are in trouble again?"

"O, it's that Miss Hurdy again. She said I had to do my arithmetic lesson, and I said I wouldn't. So she said I could not go back to class until I did my lesson, or you came. So you have to go."

"Why didn't you do your lesson?"

"I didn't feel like it. It was too hard. And anyway, I didn't like the way she spoke to me. She said, just as snippy as she could be. 'Young lady, either you do your work or you go somewhere else. This school is not the place for idle, ill-mannered children.'"

"She said that? Ill-mannered children? Well, see, I'll be right over. I'll go back with you as soon as lunch is over. Nobody is going to say that my child is ill-mannered. Not if I know it. I pay good money to that school, and I'm not going to stand for any back talk like that."

"I am sorry that your daughter cannot get along here. We have done our best, but she refuses to help us in any way. She does nothing unless the mood is on her. When we try to enforce discipline she tells us that you will not allow us to punish her. She is not to take orders from anybody. With that attitude, teaching her is impossible. We must ask you to withdraw her."

"Very well. I'll be glad to. Nobody is going to make my child do anything she doesn't want to do. That's old-fashioned. Over and done with fifty years ago. My child comes from a modern home and I want to send her to a modern school. And I will. Nobody is going to tell my child that she is ill-mannered and get away with it."

And that is just as likely to be heard in the office of the head of any school in the land as in the select private school. Indeed we hear it often in public school. It usually means that the parent has suffered under harsh conditions in her school days and has determined that her child shall not suffer in like fashion. It is a mistaken attitude that results in the very thing the mother hoped to prevent. The child suffers.

Teaching and learning are coordinated. The mind of the teacher touches the mind of the pupil. If either mind is closed against the other, there is neither teaching nor learning, only a painful confusion. No mother intends to have that happen, but this attitude of "don't touch my child," brings that situation about. It is bound to do so.

The parent has the right to expect that the school will teach her child, make progress possible, make growth pleasant and as easy as possible by strengthening the child mentally, spiritually and physically.

And the school must have the cooperation of the parents, must have their liking, their understanding, and their cordial support. Otherwise nothing happens except that the child is hurt, his growth checked, his attitudes warped, for years to come.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of the Post-Crescent, a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Female Philanderer More Dangerous Than the Male

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a man of 40 with a wife and three sons. Two years ago I went in business with another man and he and his wife and my wife and I became good friends. I have been merely courteous to my partner's wife, but I soon discovered that she was making advances to me. I told my wife about her conduct and asked that when it was necessary to take this woman to some place that she would go with me. This she does now and the woman is fool enough to think my wife is jealous. She seems to think that I would like to philander, but can't because of the circumstances. How can I protect myself under the circumstances? How can I tell a woman of her kind what he thinks of her? I understand her husband's former partner had this same difficulty. I am concerned mostly about my sons. They adore me and watch every move I make, therefore I feel that I must set the example I expect them to live by.

PERPLEXED MAN

Answer: You certainly are in a hot spot because it is far more difficult for a man to protect himself from a woman who is pursuing him than it is for a woman to protect herself against the masculine seducer. She is always for: "Unhand me, villain!" and the public rushes to her defense and believes in her innocence, while a man has to keep silent and the public lers at him and brands him as a Don Juan. Also, among philanderers the female of the species is more deadly than the male, as Kipling points out, and she is twice as dangerous because when she sets her fancy on a man nothing stops her, and no tactics are too low and dishonorable for her to use to get him.

No pity for the man whose career she is ruining, whose home she is breaking up, whose wife she is widow and whose children she is orphaning makes her stay her hand, and if the man is strong enough and upright enough and loves his wife enough to resist, there is no revenge that she will not take to soothe her hurt vanity. Every day we read in the papers of married men who have been murdered by their mistresses, or who are being dragged through the slime of lawsuits in which every sordid detail of their lives in a love nest is being publicized. So you are wise to walk warily around the flirtatious married woman. She is dangerous.

So far you have handled the situation very discreetly, but in your exasperation at this woman's designs on you do not make the mistake of telling her that you are a Joseph and that so far from being attracted to her she is as repulsive as a venomous serpent would be. That would infuriate her, and to protect herself against your telling her husband and her conduct becoming known, she would go to her husband with a pack of lies against you and start a lot of gossip that would practically drive you out of the community.

As long as you stay at home and wait for him of evenings on the off-chance that he may drop in he will consider a date with you a chore instead of a pleasure, but if you are out with somebody else having a good time and he doesn't know what to do with himself—that is another pair of sleeves. Probably the reason he got tired of you was because you smothered him to death with love so he couldn't get his breath, and he had to break off from you to get a little freedom. And maybe one of the reasons he just interest in you was because you weren't serious, down and pick you up when he chose, and that took all of the pep out of the love affair.

You've got to keep a man guessing to keep him wondering what you are going to do next. But aren't you glad you weren't serious enough to enter into a secret marriage with a man who got fed up on you so soon?

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am 40 years old. Have a husband who is well and strong, but who has not worked in the last six years, a daughter 19 who is crippled and a son of 17. The children and I go to bed hungry every night and I have come to the place where I think the only thing is for me to commit murder and suicide, because I will not leave my children here without me. Is there any other way out? I am a fine cook, but have nothing to cook. A BROKEN-HEARTED MOTHER.

Answer: If you will go to the Social Service Bureau in your town they will show you a much better way out of your difficulties than by the murder and suicide route. You have just got discouraged and need somebody to buck you up and plan your life for you.

My Neighbor Says—

Add a teaspoon of cornstarch to a cup of sugar when making fudge. This makes it smoother and creamier.

When fish is to be served as the main dish at a dinner, allow one-half pound for each person.

A piece of cheese about the size of a walnut, added to cream soup just before serving, gives it a delicious flavor.

CASE RECORDS OF A PSYCHOLOGIST

By Dr. George W. Crane
Psychologist, Northwestern University

It takes 40 years of active life to equip a man or woman for effective work in this world. The woman past 40 have the ability and energy to remake society and outlaw war. They are the chief custodians of culture and the pioneers in moral advancement. More power to them! But they should wear out in constructive work, instead of rusting out in idle self pity or fruitless bridge playing.

CASE P-112: Mary M., aged 44, is the mother of three children. "My youngest child is now in college," she announced, "and I feel so much alone that I am almost dying of homesickness to see him."

"As a rule, I guess, it is the son or daughter who grows homesick when he leaves for college, but this time it's the one who seems to feel it most."

"Dr. Crane, I have devoted my life to my children. And they have turned out to be very fine people. But now the nest is empty and my work seems done."

get a panicky feeling that there's nothing much left for me in this world. Sometimes I cling to my husband in panic, just afraid of the future. What can I do to get over this trouble?"

DIAGNOSIS:

Mary is really in the prime of life with a rich social experience, a good understanding of human nature, and abundance of good health. Her work is not over. She has simply graduated from one grade in life to the next classroom. Now she has time to evaluate the forces in society which are constructive versus those which are destructive.

After she gets her bearings, she should take an active interest in religious or civic enterprises.

She has great capacity for such constructive work. And society needs this type of woman very much.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

SATURDAY TALK

Many questions are left about submarines after the article we had on the subject yesterday. We took the story only up to the outbreak of the World war.

In that war, Great Britain had the best navy and was able to blockade the North Sea coast of Germany. The German rulers decided to use submarines as "the answer." They sent submarines to points around the British Isles, and ordered the captains to fire torpedoes into merchant vessels bound for Great Britain's shores.

For a time, the German submarines usually followed the rules of war, giving warning to merchant vessels before they were sunk. Then came a change. Torpedoes were set loose without warning of any kind. Thousands of passengers—men, women and children—were drowned when vessels were sunk.

One early victim of German submarines was a large British liner, the "Lusitania." On a May day in 1915, the "Lusitania" was sent to the bottom, with the loss of 1,198 lives. Among the passengers were many Americans, including the well-known writer, Elbert Hubbard. In later months, several American merchant vessels were sunk by German submarines. This did a great deal to bring the United States into the war against Germany.

The submarine warfare destroyed 2,098 British merchant vessels. This figure does not count several hundred British fishing vessels which were sunk. Norway and other neutral countries lost more than a thousand ships. If we add the losses of France, the United States and other nations in the war against Germany, the loss goes to 5,408 ships in four years and four months of war.

That was a terrible toll, but it did not give victory to Germany. Several thousand new ships—almost enough to match the losses—were launched by the Allies during the war.

The submarines were hunted down, and 208 of them were destroyed. In the closing months of the war, submarines did not do much damage.

The torpedoing of the "Athenia," early the past September, marked the outbreak of new submarine warfare. Germany later denied having done the deed, but the stories of passengers made it seem certain that the ship was struck by a torpedo. Some passengers stated that the submarine later fired shells at the "Athenia."

Since then, submarines have sunk dozens of vessels, including some of Norway, Sweden and Denmark, but British war vessels have sent quite a number of submarines to the bottom.
